BIG WHITE CITY OF WORLD'S FAIR GOES UP IN SMOKE

Belgian Exposition of 1910 a Mass of Flames and Smouldering Ruins.

SUNDAY CROWDS FOUGHT MADLY TO ESCAPE FIRE

Many Women and Children Were Trampled in the Panic. Only Two Killed, but Hundreds Received Minor Hurts. All the Beasts in the Menagerie Victims of the Flames.

Brussels, August 14.—The White City of the World's Fair, as the Belgians have called their 1910 exposition, is tonight a mass of flames and smouldering ruins.

A spark falling into inflammable material burst into flames, which, driven by a high wind, swept rapidly in all directions. Soon the Belgian, English and French sections were destroyed. The firemen and detachments of soldiers, called quickly to the scene, found themselves baffled by the veritable gale, which carried the burning embers to all parts of the grounds.

Crowd in a Panic.

To the left of the main building arise the picturesque roofs and spires of "Brussels Kermesz," a Belgian Coney Island, with water chutes, toboggan slides and scores of side shows. This place was alive with Sunday crowds, and before they could be got out with any semblance of order, the Kermesz was afire.

The crowds became panic-stricken and men, women and children fought madly to escape. The exits became choked with the struggling masses, and men used their fists to clear the pathway. Many were trampled under foot and badly injured.

Dynamite Used by Firemen.

An engine corps from Antwerp attempted to dynamite the bridge of the French section in the hope of checking the fire, but the flames leaped across and engulfed the Italian, Russian, Austrian, Japanese, Chinese and Norwegian buildings. Forty houses on the Avenue Solbosch, adjoining the exposition, were destroyed.

At the time of the outbreak not less than 100,000 persons were circulating in the grounds and the Kermesz. Troops were ordered out and came at

TO ADD A BURDEN OF $500,000,000 RAILROADS FIGHT

Proposed Advances in Freight Rates Will Total That Sum Each Year.

RAILROADS REQUIRED TO JUSTIFY ADVANCES

Hearing in Regard to Proposed Increases Will Begin Today Before the Interstate Commerce Commission in New York----Advances Proposed Average About 16 Per Cent.

Washington, August 14.—Increases in freight rates, aggregating, according to estimates made by the interstate commerce commission, $500,000,000 annually, in official classification territory—that part of the country north of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi rivers, will be considered at a hearing to be begun tomorrow morning in the custom house at New York City.

The likelihood that the formal hearing of the evidence in the case, the most important to the people, the interstate commerce commission has yet undertaken, will be postponed until a later date, probably September 7, because the railroads are not fully prepared to proceed. The tariffs involved have been postponed until November 1. Meantime the existing rates are in effect. It will make no difference to the commission, therefore, whether the roads are prepared to go on with the hearing or not. Such delay as may result from postponement will operate against the railroads.

Advances Averaged 16 Per Cent.

According to unofficial figures made by the commission, the advances shown by the tariffs filed by the lines in classification territory averaged about 16 per cent over existing rates. The increases apply to both class and commodity rates. Taking the present volume of traffic as a basis, an increase of 16 per cent would amount to an advance for all the railroads in the entire territory of approximately $500,000,000 a year.

This advance is distributed among 413 different transportation lines, being an average of something more than $1,000,000 a year each. Of course, the total amount of increase will be distributed proportionately to the tonnage of freight handled by the various roads, the increases in the rates being substantially the same in all cases.

Heavy Increase in Operating Expenses.

Taft at Last Sees Necessity for the Execution of the Old Stand-patter.

HEAD OF BALLINGER TO DROP WITH CANNON'S

Taft and His Advisers Have Resolved to Sacrifice All the "Old Timers" in Effort to Appease the Growing Spirit of Insurgency---Handwriting on the Wall Being Heeded.

Beverly, Mass., August 14.—Senator W. Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, who has been the prominent central figure in the group of events that have spread reports of a coming readjustment in certain circles of the republican party, is coming to Beverly Tuesday to make a personal report to the president regarding his recent mission.

Senator Crane has not been at the summer capital since he went west to meet Secretary Ballinger, and to Warwick Neck, R. I., to talk with Senator Aldrich about that rubber statement.

The doubt as to how far President Taft is behind the moves that have been made by Senator Crane and some of his associates still exists. The president has been reading with keen interest the reports of the various moves as they have been made, but has made no public comment upon any phase of the situation. There is every likelihood that this silence will continue. It is known, however, that Mr. Taft's mail has increased by leaps and bounds during the last week, and that his official clipping bureau has been busy with an accumulation of favor-

SENATOR ALDRICH WILL INVADE HOSTILE WEST AND REPLY TO CHARGES MADE BY INSURGENTS

Warwick Neck, R. I., August 14.—United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich is preparing for his trip through the west, when he will make several political speeches in defense of the tariff, and will doubtless reply to the charges recently made by Senator Bristow, of Kansas, regarding the rubber schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill. Senator Aldrich has promised to issue a statement in answer to the Bristow accusations in a few days and also will talk about them in the heart of the insurgents' country. He reiterates his determination to retire from the senate, and declares that his trip westward is only in defense of the tariff law. He has told some of the friends who have talked with him in regard to the matter that he is proud of the part he played in framing the rubber and cotton schedules.

TAFT WORRIED BY THE SILENCE OF ROOSEVELT

President Is Anxious to Learn Just What the Colonel Intends to Do.

NOT A CHEER FOR TAFT GIVEN BY ROOSEVELT

President Worried by Failure to Secure Roosevelt's Indorsement—Taft Sends Emissary to Sagamore Hill to Find Out Roosevelt's Attitude in the Campaign.

Oyster Bay, August 14.—Ex-President Roosevelt announced today that Lloyd C. Griscom, chairman of the New York republican county committee, will come to Sagamore Bay tomorrow morning for a conference. Mr. Griscom spent last night with President Taft at Beverly, and although Colonel Roosevelt will not say so, it is known that Mr. Griscom will come to Sagamore Hill as the bearer of an important message from President Taft. The conference, therefore, will be of more than usual importance.

Mr. Griscom took luncheon with Colonel Roosevelt in New York on Friday before departing for Beverly, and they discussed, among other things, the county chairman's approaching visit to the president. As soon as Mr. Griscom returned today from the summer capital he telephoned to Colonel Roosevelt an urgent request for a conference with him as soon as possible. Colonel Roosevelt asked him to come to Sagamore Hill tomorrow morning.

Taft Wants to Get Line on Roosevelt.

The colonel would add nothing to the bare announcement that Mr. Griscom was to come, except to say that he had read with great interest the dispatches from Beverly intimating that the president is expecting Ballinger to resign, and that Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon in the future are to be in less direct contact with the administration. He refused to give his views on this subject, or to say whether the message which Mr. Griscom bears constitutes another step in the administration's program for readjusting conditions within the party.

It is believed here, however, that as a result of Mr. Griscom's visit the exact relations between the president and the ex-president will be more clearly defined, even though no public announcement be made. Since Colonel Roosevelt's return from Africa, he has resolutely avoided placing himself on record in regard to the Taft administration. He has seen the president only once, and then for a comparatively short time during his visit to Boston for the Harvard commencement. So far as is known, no message has passed between them since that time, and it is believed that President Taft desires to ascertain where his predecessor stands, particularly in view of the national campaign, which is soon to get under way.

Roosevelt's Trip to the West.

Colonel Roosevelt's western trip is to start on Tuesday of next week. During the trip it is expected he will place himself on record in regard to a number of matters of great interest to the country and the republican party. One of them will be the conservation of natural resources, which has been the subject of so much discussion during the months which President Taft has been in the white house.

While it is believed that Colonel Roosevelt will not have one word of criticism of the administration in any of these speeches, there is good ground for the assumption that he will not depart from the vigorous stand for conservation which he assumed while he was president. Whatever may be the tenor of Mr. Griscom's message from the president, it may be said that Colonel Roosevelt will proceed with the program which it is known he has mapped out for himself.

Comst-to-Const Trip for Roosevelt.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

London, August 14.—Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse of the Crimean war, and the only woman who ever received the Order of Merit, died yesterday afternoon at her London home. Although she had been an invalid for a long time, rarely leaving her room, where she passed the time in a half recumbent position, and was under the constant care of a physician, her death was somewhat unexpected. A week ago she was quite sick, but then improved, and on Friday was cheerful. During that night alarming symptoms developed, and she gradually sank until 2 o'clock Satur-

CHEERING NEWS FOR GOV. BROWN

Encouraging Reports From All Over the State.

Satisfactory Progress Noted in Letters From 82 Counties Received Last Week---Governor Brown Explains About Machinists' Subscription List.

With but seven working days remaining before the ballots are cast for governor on August 23 the supporters of Governor Joseph M. Brown have settled down to a steady pace of aggressive and effective work in organizing the state for the governor.

Thousands of campaign buttons are daily being sent out to clubs all over Georgia, and the effort is being made to keep up as closely as possible with the mass of mail matter received daily.

The tabulated returns of last week's work showed that 82 counties were heard from, and there were from 1 to 12 letters from each, reporting satisfactory progress. Many humorous and amusing incidents of mishaps to Smith men who made rash wagers two years ago are reported. One was the ducking of J. T. Oglesby, of McDonough, at Forest Park, in Clayton county, because he failed to make good on his prediction that Hoke Smith would be elected two years ago by 25,000 majority.

Explains Subscription List.

Governor Brown was asked Sunday about the subscription lists aid to have been presented to him by the representatives of Atlanta Auxiliary No. 1, Association of Machinists, and the report that he would not make a contribution because the name of Hoke Smith was on the same list.

Governor Brown said he recalled the incident perfectly and that he assured the gentlemen who called on him that he always responded as far as his means would permit to church work, charitable organizations and benevolent purposes, but he regretted that he could not respond to all. When his attention was called to the fact that Hoke Smith had made a contribution, he replied that he supposed Mr. Smith subscribed to a great many movements of this kind, as he did, but they should keep charity separate from politics.

With this statement Governor Brown handed back the paper.

Managers at Hoke Smith headquarters denied that they had put the card signed "Hoke Smith's Friends, Auxiliary No. 1 to the I. A. of M.," and disclaimed any responsibility for it.

Colonel E. W. Butler, of Madison, formerly mayor of that city, and one of the most prominent citizens of his section of the state, in a letter to Millard George, of Madison, which was given out at headquarters, affirms the

SMITH TO SPEAK IN GAINESVILLE

Addresses Voters of Hall at 11 O'Clock.

On Tuesday Night Mr. Smith Will Speak in Augusta--Dates Are Announced for Smith Speakers---Card Is Given Out From W. P. Anderson.

Former Governor Smith returned to Atlanta yesterday morning from his speaking tour in south Georgia and will leave on the early morning Southern train today for Gainesville, where at 11 o'clock he will address the voters of Hall county.

It is probable he will speak in the open air if the crowd overflows the small courtroom. A large crowd made up of citizens of Hall and surrounding counties is expected to hear Mr. Smith, as this is probably the only speech he will make in that particular section before August 23. Next Saturday he will speak at Lawrenceville, in Gwinnett county.

On Tuesday night, August 16, Mr. Smith will speak in Augusta.

Hon. Sam L. Olive, of Elberton, has made engagements to speak at the following places this week: Monday, Camilla; Wednesday, Dawson; Thursday, Albany; Saturday, Ocilla.

J. B. Copeland, of Valdosta, speaks at Winona on Tuesday and at Cobbtown on Saturday. George C. Thomas, of Athens, will speak at Monroe on Tuesday in the interest of the former governor's candidacy for reelection. R. J. Gunn and John Clay Smith will speak at Fayetteville on Saturday. John Y. Smith, of Atlanta, will speak in Cobb county on Thursday.

Card From Mr. Anderson.

The following card from W. P. Anderson, a member of the firm of W. W. Anderson & Co., of Atlanta, was given out at Smith headquarters on Saturday, in which reference is made to the financial report of the Alonzo Richardson Company, made after an inspection of the state treasury on instructions of Governor Brown:

"So many people have taken shots at Governor Brown's peculiar letter that I have hesitated about doing so. Still, there is one thing in it to which I, as a business man, desire to refer.

"He calls attention to the amount paid to teachers by Governor Smith in 1908 and prides himself that in 1909 there was money enough to pay the teachers a larger part of their salaries than in 1908.

The Richardson Co. Report.

"Do he and his supporters think the people have no memory? Has Governor Brown forgotten that in August and September, 1909, sixty days after he took charge as governor, he published to the world that the treasury was bankrupt and that there would be a deficit in the treasury of over $700,000 on the first of January, 1910?

"Have he and his supporters forgotten that they then claimed that the

ROCKS, BOMBS AND BULLETS

Used in Street Car Strike at Columbus.

The Rioters Continued Their Activity on the Sabbath. One Man Shot and Attempt Made to Blow Up Barns. More Cops Mutiny.

Columbus, Ohio, August 14.—The Sabbath did not deter street car strike rioters, for they continued their activity today and tonight. The police were kept busy responding to riot calls, and the city was surcharged with excitement.

A man of the north side who cried "Scab" at a car crew was shot in the leg by a non-union conductor. A woman was hit by a stone and seriously injured while riding on an east side car. Eight more policemen joined the police mutiny today against riding on cars.

A story published today to the effect that Mayor Marshall had encouraged the organization of the carmen's union and had promised that in the event of a contest with the company he would assist them, met with prompt denial on the part of Charles Miller, the union's business agent.

An effort was made to call the attention of Governor Harmon to the report, but the governor could not be reached.

There were no developments today in connection with the talked-of suspension of Mayor Marshall by the governor.

Rioters today brought explosives into use again. An attempt was made to blow up the west side car barns and also the south side barns.

Both efforts were futile. The charges were not large enough to effect great damage or to injure persons in the barns.

Paris, August 14.—Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, has won The London Daily Mail's prize of $5,000 for the longest total of cross-country flights made during the year ending today. He is credited with 821 miles. Graham White, who was beaten by Paulhan in the recent great flight from London to Manchester, is second in the present competition, with 759 miles. Aubrun and Leblanc, who are the surviving competitors in the cross-country race which started from Paris a few days ago, and is not yet ended, are credited with 464 and 401 miles respectively in The Daily Mail's competition.

Thirty-two persons were killed and 100 injured. Many of the victims were schoolgirls. Several of the passenger cars were torn to splinters. A misplaced switch caused the accident.

New Orleans, August 14.—A body was found floating in the Mississippi river just below New Orleans today, and was identified as that of a man who after shooting himself, jumped from a ferry boat here Friday. Certain articles of his clothing indicated that he was George S. Thompson of Butler, Pa., who recently returned from a trip to Panama.

ING, and be is also a great believer in a GOOD ORGANIZATION TO BACK UP HIS ADVERTISING.

Some time ago I mentioned in an article a conversation I had with his employees. We are accustomed, you know, to speak of people who work for us as EMPLOYEES. Mr. Ridgway did not like that term, so he wrote me the following letter:

"There was just one little 'jar' in your article, which would not strike an outsider at all—where you speak of two of my 'EMPLOYEES.' You could not know, of course, that I HAVE NO EMPLOYEES.

"This organization comes as near being A DEMOCRACY as it is possible to make it. WE ARE ASSOCIATES. I am their associate and they are my associates. All of us work all over the place. WE SEEK EACH OTHER'S ADVICE constantly, and when we get the advice we know it is exactly the other fellow's opinion, and not the opinion he thinks we want.

"I CANNOT PUT ANYTHING INTO THE MAGAZINES THAT THE OTHERS DO NOT WISH PUT IN. Everything that goes in must have at least the MAJORITY VOTE of the staff. Favorite notions of mine are sometimes out-voted, all of which I am explaining so you will understand why I never speak of my associates as employees, and somehow I am jarred when they are spoken of as employees.

"The man who does his work well, however minor his position, if he is living up to his biggest capacity and his biggest loyalty, is just as good a man as I am. This is not a theory of mine, but a conviction.

"If any man in the place thinks I am on the WRONG TRACK, he is not only at liberty, but HE IS EXPECTED TO WALK IN AND TELL ME SO. Even though he may be wrong, his INTEREST and HELPFUL SPIRIT are appreciated just the same.

"And when I think one of my associates is on the wrong track, I walk in and tell him in the same spirit; and if I haven't brains enough to show him that he is on the wrong track, or he hasn't brains enough to see that he is on the wrong track—in other words, IF WE CANNOT AGREE, we call a conference. Each of us presents his side of the story and then we take a vote.

"The result is that THERE IS NO RANCOR — NO ONE FORCED TO DO ANYTHING by some other man—no "Boss," and I think the finest, most effective, most enthusiastic organization of its kind in the world."

IF THIS SORT OF RELATIONSHIP existed in stores between members of the firm and their managers—if it existed in turn between the managers and the workers in the organization, and if it existed between all of them and the ADVERTISING Department, can you see any chance of failure as the RESULT OF THEIR ADVERTISING?

"Repeat the words the defendant used," commanded counsel for the woman plaintiff in a case of slander being tried in the first criminal court of Newark recently.

"I'd rather not," bashfully replied the defendant. "They were hardly words to tell to a gentleman."

"Whisper them to the judge, then," magnanimously suggested counsel—and the court was obliged to rap for order.

PET DOG REVEALS MURDER OF WOMAN

Animal Uncovers Body of Mrs. Castine in Front Yard.

Lancaster, Cal., August 14.—In a shallow grave sunk in the sand of her front yard, a pet dog uncovered today the body of Mrs. Frieda Schultz Castine, a wealthy ranch owner.

Every indication points to murder, with robbery as the motive, and telegrams have been sent broadcast to arrest the woman's brother-in-law, Otto Schultz, who left here yesterday after telling a railroad station agent that he was bound for Germany.

Mrs. Castine was last seen Friday, when she came here from her ranch, 4 miles east, to receive a remittance of $6,000 for relatives in San Francisco.

The investigations of officers of the sheriff's office in Los Anegeles, who arrived here this afternoon, tend to show that the woman was murdered as she drove into her yard, and that she was thrown into the shallow hole while yet alive.

An autopsy disclosed the presence of sand in the lungs and bronchial tubes, drawn by the victim's dying gasps.

Mrs. Castine's son found his mother's body, half uncovered and mutilated by the dog when he returned from a trip this morning. A wide wound, evidently inflicted by an axe in the back of the head showed the work of the slayer and the young man, who knew his mother had gone to town to receive a large sum, could not find any trace of the money.

Otto Schultz, the brother-in-law, who came here recently to take charge of the ranch, also was missing, and on being apprised of the search Station Agent Stoughton recalled the fact that Schultz had purchased a ticke for Los Angeles and had said he was on his way back toGermany,where both the Schultz and Castine families are said to be well connected.

The $6,000 which Mrs. Castine is said to have received Friday is declared to have come to her from an estate in the Fatherland.

Schultz left a trunk with the station agent with instructions to forward it to Galveston.

CARDINAL RUNS FROM LEGACY

Rome, August 14. — Cardinal Merry del Val as a youth was an athlete of more than ordinary class. He is still an exceedingly athletic man; in fact, it is said that he is the only one of the august body to which he belongs who ever makes an attempt to take physical exercise. This, perhaps, is not surprising when it is remembered that most of his brother cardinals are nearer seventy than sixty.

Last year the cardinal was the hero of a very amusing incident arising out of an action in the Italian courts concerning a bequest of 2,000,000 lire to the holy see. The papal authorities were not represented at the proceedings, and the judgment could not be carried into effect until formal notice had been served either upon the papal secretary or the pontiff himself.

For two months a court official made repeated, but unsuccessful, attempts to catch the cardinal. One day it came to the official's knowledge that his quarry had gone to the Lake Bracciano. Hurrying thither, he came face to face with the cardinal while bathing, whereupon he flourished his all-important paper.

But his eminence, who is an excellent and powerful swimmer, made off for the shore, and regained his cabin. When he emerged, the official was nowhere to be seen, and the cardinal immediately drove off to a restaurant, where he lunched in a private room.

Recently he called for his bill. He was handed a slip, only to find that he had been given the court decree. But the judgment was simply to the effect that the Italian government had authorized the vatican to accept the legacy of 2,000,000 lire.

Quotation Marks.

Senator Beveridge, in an after-dinner speech in Cleveland, said of a corrupt politician:

"The man's excuse is as absurd as the excuse that a certain minister offered on being convicted of plagiarism.

"'Brethren,' said the minister, 'it is true that I occasionally borrow for my sermons, but I always acknowledge the fact in the pulpit by raising two fingers at the beginning and two at the end of the borrowed matter, thus indicating that it is quoted.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

VIRGINIA'S STATUE OF WASHINGTON GREATLY PLEASES PEOPLE OF FRANCE

Paris, August 14.—When the bronze copy of the famous Houdon statue of Washington, which is to be presented to the French people by the state of Virginia August 18, is unveiled a great demonstration of the friendly feeling of this nation for the United States will be made. An extensive program has been arranged, and, besides the presentation speeches and words of acceptance, musical fetes and several banquets have been prepared for the visiting Americans sent by Virginia. The committee consists of Colonel James Mann, nephew of the governor of Virginia; Senator Floyd King and Senator Don P. Halsey. The presentation will be made at Versailles, but the entertainment of the visitors will take place in this city to a large extent.

LONDON TURNS AMERICAN DURING THE MONTH OF JULY

London, August 14.—For those Americans who expect to derive valuable impressions of English traits, London in July is bound to prove a disappointment. London ceases to be English during July. The streets, the 'buses, the public buildings are void of the atmosphere one has learned to associate with this historic city.

In the shops, for instance, the prices are translated into dollars and cents, liberally translated, but still plainly American. There are so many Americans in London at present that one American often takes another American for an Englishman; it seems impossible that Englishmen in their country could be so few and far between. Yesterday I was waiting for a 'bus on the Strand, when I was assailed by a compatriot who wished to know how much longer he would have to wait for his 'bus.

"None of these long waits for mine," he said, "in the part of the country I come from no one waits for anything." I grinned and tried to look as English as he mistook me to be. Later I informed him that the 'bus which had just waddled to a stop was the one he wanted. By the time the seats had been allotted to the women that were waiting, there were none left; the American looked to me for commiseration, and then slowly drew a card out of his pocket inscribed with the legend: "Life is just one damn thing after another." Of course he walked to his domicile; Americans wait for nothing.

The places to look for friends in London are the places you would never look for them at home—i. e., churches. It is a joy to note erstwhile irreverent youths from America as with bowed heads they mincingly tread the stones of English cathedrals. Somebody they once read about was buried under their feet; and as they play hop-scotch through the naves of the church they read the who's and why's on the marble slabs.

And furthermore, if it wasn't for the American school marms, who frequent these shores, English officiality would soon deteriorate. Every year the caretakers of the museums take their examinations; they learn that the placards of old historical manuscripts should not in any way conceal the text of the opened page; they are taught to distinguish B. C. from A. D.

When visitors to that "fascinating old-world home" in Chelsea of Carlyle's have decided in which chair it was that this "master of English prose" prophesied the advent of the tight skirt, they take, no, not the "Pearline," but the "safety razor" 'bus back to Bloomsbury. There everything is like home to them.

American flags are flaunted over every doorstep. And after a feeble wash-up (one can't be so particular while one is traveling as at home, where he has "every convenience"), everyone descends to the dining-room to partake of "solid English cooking," food that in America would promptly be returned to the cook without compliments.

In the evening, the theaters are filled with "plain tailor suits" and "tuxedos." Occasionally an Englishman with his clothes and his wife sagging slimly about him is to be distinguished in the balcony. He is out of place in the London that isn't his in July; he knows it and he slinks from the curious gaze of these "Yankees." He doesn't realize that the watch or bracelet on his wrist, the unbuttoned bottom of his waistcoat, and the handkerchief in his sleeve, are items of curiosity to a vulgar American.

After an American has been in London for some time he doesn't notice the foreign element nere any more than in some other American city; in fact, he grows to tolerate the Englishman in London as he does the Russians in New York, the Swedes in Minneapolis, or the Chinamen in San Francisco.

GERMANY LEADS WORLD IN NUMBER OF STRIKES

Berlin, August 14—(Special)—According to statistics just published in the German "Imperial Labor Gazette," Germany leads in the number of strikes. From the figures given it would seem that the German workmen are usually far from satisfied. According to the figures there were 1,347 strikes in Germany in 1908 alone, against 399 in England. France and Austria had respectively 1,073 and 721. Germany too, had far more strikes than any country in Europe in 1909. Of 1,419 German strikes for higher wages, 255 were successful, 488 partly so, and 676 failed. The German trade unions disbursed on account of strikes in 1907 the sum of $3,500,000 or 31 per cent of their total expenditure for all purposes; while the British unions in the same period paid out only $665,000 for strikes, or 6½ per cent of their aggregate expenditure. The British unions devoted 66 per cent of their strike outlay to the support of idle strikers, against 29 per cent devoted to the same purpose in Germany. The discrepancy is due to the fact that the German workmen's insurance system relieved the trade unions of many burdens which the unions in England have to bear.

SETTLERS FLEEING FROM FOREST FIRES

United States Government Using Troops to Fight Flames.

Spokane, Wash., August 14.—Settlers on the Big Creek of the St. Joe river, in the Couer d'Alene district in Idaho, are reported to have been driven from their homes by the ravages of forest fires, and Joseph Burzinsky and wife are missing.

The greater part of the Big Creek settlement has been wiped out.

Information comes from Dayton, Wash., that the forest fires in the Wenah reserve are under control.

More Troops Wanted.

Washington, August 14.—A call for additional help to fight the forest fires in the Rocky mountains reached the forest service today. The district forester at Portland, Oregon., telegraphed to Washington that the situation in the Colville national forest in northern Washington, on the Canadian border, had grown very bad. Additional assistance was urgently requested.

General Wood, chief of staff of the army, last night ordered troops to proceed to Republic, a town within easy reach of the reserve, and it is hoped by the officials that they will be able to meet the situation. It is estimated that the government has 5,000 men fighting forest fires.

POOLED TOBACCO CROP TO BE SOLD TUESDAY

Burley Society Will Put 120,000,000 Pounds on Market.

Lexington, Ky., August 14.—Burley Tobacco Society officials tonight gave out a statement to the effect that numerous replies had been received to an invitation sent out to the tobacco manufacturers two weeks ago to attend a sale of the pooled tobacco crop of 1909, amounting to 120,000,000 pounds.

The sale will take place next Tuesday at prices fixed by the executive board of the burley society, but bids will be asked from manufacturers as to amounts they may desire to purchase. It was said today that a part of the holdings might be sold and the rest held until fall.

The crop in sixty counties in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana will be affected by the sale.

PREMIUMS OFFERED FOR CHILDREN

Berlin, August 14—(Special)—Whether Colonel Roosevelt's latest European exhortations on the race suicide question had anything to do with it I do not know, but the fashionable suburb of Schoneberg, made up of American and English residents, has offered a bounty for every child born in the families of municipal workmen.

A regular scale of pensions has been made out for the families. In addition to their regular wages, the heads of families of three children will receive an extra monthly payment of $3. For four children they will receive $3.75; for five children they will receive $4.50, and for six children they will receive $5.

A set of regulations has been drawn up and they are being distributed among the working men of Berlin.

These bounties will be paid to fathers whose children are under sixteen years of age and only those families who can produce evidence that the children are dependent upon them will receive pensions.

Later pensions are promised to the mothers of large families, but the measures providing this belief have not yet been drawn up.

Washing Day Hints.

Glycerin will remove coffee and tea stains from linen. Pour it over the stained parts, rub in well and wash in the usual way.

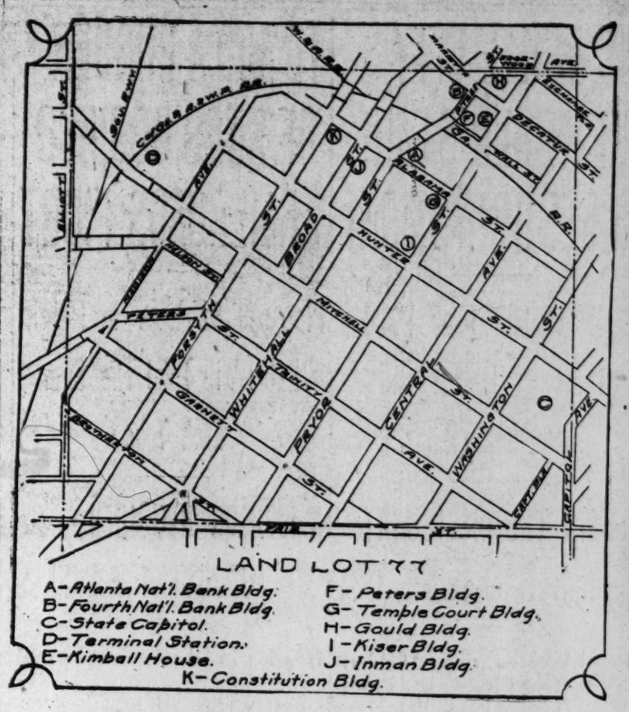

When drying flannel blouses never hang them near a fire or they will certainly shrink. Th ebest way is to hang them in a warm room away from the fire or in a shady, windy place out of doors.

When making hot starch add a level teaspoonful of dry washing powder to a quart of starch and the irons will not stick.

A most effecctive method of removing mildew stains from linen is to rub soap on the spots, then chalk and lemon juice and bleach the garments in the sun.

When a blue serge costume begins to look rather shiny and worn it can be removed in tse following way Make a strong blue water and sponge the material with it. Allow the moisture to dry a little, then spread on an ironing board. Cover with a piece of muslin and press with a hot iroon.

LAND WORTH MILLIONS NOW SOLD FOR $41, MAY 3, 1832

This land lot sold for $41 in 1832. It is worth many millions now. A small part of the lot has just been sold for $23,500.

A lot fronting 49½ feet on Whitehall street, with 181 6-10 feet on Brotherton street, has just changed hands, the consideration being $23,500.

The lot is a small fraction of land lot 77 in the Fourteenth district of Henry county, now Fulton county, the same parcel of ground in which are located the old union depot, the Kimball House, the Atlanta National Bank building, the Fourth National Bank, the Peters building, the Temple Court building, the Kiser building, the Fulton county courthouse, the state capitol, the St. Philip's Cathedral, the Fulton county jail, police headquarters, the Gould building, the Inman building and The Constitution building.

Land Lot Shows Many Changes.

Land lot 77, either as a whole or parts of it, has shown many changes since its metes and bounds were first traced by a civil engineer. It was back in the early years of 1800 a surveyor made for record the first lines indicating the old land lot which has since figured in the land history of Henry, then De Kalb, and then Fulton county.

The original land lot had for its northern boundary line a straight shoot from a point in Edgewood avenue, in an alley in rear of the Equitable building. The line on the north ran directly west through the Western and Atlantic yards to Elliot street, where it turned at right angles to the south and ran straight south to Fair street, where it right-angled east to Capitol avenue, whence it ran north to the point of beginning in the alley behind the Equitable building.

In the early part of 1800 the state of Georgia acquired from the Creek nation of Indians many thousands acres of land in what is now recorded as the counties of Dooly, Houston, Monroe, Fayette and Henry counties. Subsequently an act of the state legislature authorized the governor of the state to convey in fee simple any parts of the land in the section of the country indicated to residents for homes and improvement. In 1821, May 15, George M. Troup, then governor of the state, did "give and grant unto Benjamin Beckman, of Putnam county, his heirs and assigns forever in fee simple" the land lot indicated, then located in Henry county, and recorded as land lot 77 of the Fourteenth district of Henry county, containing 202½ acres. In the deed the land lot is fully described and its description conforms fully with the plat here shown.

Sold for $41.

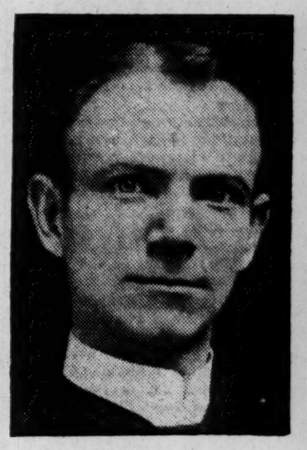

On May 7, 1832, Benjamin Beckman sold the full land lot to Samuel Mitchell, of Henry county, $41 being the consideration. In the meantime DeKalb county was laid out and after Samuel Mitchell bought it the county courthouse in Decatur was destroyed by fire and among the records burned were Samuel Mitchell's deeds. Mitchell was then a resident of Pike county, and through the inferior court of that county he had his title in the full land lot set up.

In 1845 Samuel Mitchell had the full land lot divided into blocks and city lots, the surveying being done by Allen W. Pryor, a civil engineer. As the surveyor was dividing the land lot into blocks Samuel Mitchell gave the railroads entering the city a right-of-way through it and deeded to the state of Georgia the city lots on which the present union station is located for depot purposes. That portion of the old land lot given for depot purposes consisted of four city lots, each to be 210 feet square. Before dying Mitchell sold many of the city lots.

Shortly after the death of Mitchell, Allen E. Johnson set up a claim to the property, asserting that Mitchell had never had any title to the land lot recorded as land lot 77 in Henry county. Johnson then secured letters of administration on the estate of Benjamin Beckman, to whom the state gave the original land lot, and from whom Samuel Mitchell claimed title. The letters of administration were granted in Putnam county, and from the inferior court of that county, Johnson, as administrator of the Beckman estate, was given the right to sell land lot 77 as a part of the estate of Benjamin Beckman. The Mitchell heirs fought the order of sale in the DeKalb courts and the legal controversy was adjusted when Johnson, as administrator of the Beckman estate, passed, by deed, the title to Jane Mitchell, administratrix of Samuel Mitchell, the consideration being $500.

Sold to Doonin.

In 1849 the Mitchell estate, by Jane L. Mitchell, administratrix, deeded city lots 1, 2 and 4, in block 29, in land lot 77, to Terrance Doonin, from whom it came to Jane Sullivan for $3,660. In 1862 the title to the city lot, fronting Whitehall street 150 feet and a fraction, was in Willis P. Chisholm and his wife, M. B. Chisholm, by whom it was transferred to the late W. H. Brotherton. In 1886 the lot was sold at public sale by John H. Jones, administrator of Mrs. Emilie C. Caldwell, to Aaron Haas, the frontage then being 49 feet and a fraction, for $3,475.

CHARLES S. ROBISON, Who has purchased a small fraction of land lot 77.

In 1891 it went from Aaron Haas to Solomon Haas and Isaac G. Haas for $14,000. In 1908 Isaac G. Haas sold the lot to J. J. and J. W. Mangham, of Griffin, for $16,000. Last week Charles S. Robison, of Atlanta, well-known furniture dealer, bought the lot from J. J. and J. W. Mangham for $23,000.

Mr. Robison is at present holding the property and may later improve it. On the lot there is a brick store and a residence.

Do You Suffer from Splitting Headaches?

If headache sufferers would do a little hard thinking, they would surely learn that headaches of all kinds are simply results -- warning signals — of far more serious trouble. Usually headache means that the blood and nerves are poisoned by an inactive and sluggish liver. Don't become one of the habitual headache sufferers who explain their condition by saying: "Oh, I am subject to headaches. I always get headache if I get excited or it is too noisy." There is no need of it either. Stop taking dangerous headache powders, and put your liver in good shape, so that it will carry off foul secretions and remove properly the bile elements from the blood by taking Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills.

These little pills are Nature's true laxative, and a positive cure for a torpid liver. They assist digestion, unload the bile ducts, and cure headache by first removing the cause. Physicians use and recommend. They form no habit. You should always keep them on hand. These little Vegetable Pills will ward off many ills.

DERELICT FLOATS WITH TWO CORPSES

Four Men Killed When Boilers of Schooner Explode.

Point Arena, Cal., August 14.—Four men were killed late last night when the boilers of the steam schooner Phoenix blew up at sea, about ten miles north of the Point Arena lighthouse. Two of the dead—Chief Engineer Thomas Houston and Second Mate Andrew Rasmussen—reached shore with the survivors of the vessel, but died this morning of their injuries.

The mangled bodies of two firemen—Christ Hansen and William Nicholsen—ride tonight in the demolished engine room of their water-logged ship as she floats at sea, a derelict.

The Phoenix, loaded with bark from Needle Rock for San Francisco, was making her way slowly southward against a brisk wind in a choppy sea. When the explosion came Chief Officer Louis Larsen was torn from his post on the bridge and his body was sent hurling through the air 30 feet to the deck below. The sailors forward and Captain Peter Halverson, seated in his cabin, were tossed about in their quarters by the force of the explosion.

able editorial comment on the reports emanating from Beverly.

Significant Steps This Week.

It is said that the coming week will be marked by significant steps in preparing for the fall campaign. Beverly will fairly teem with politicians. Some of these undoubtedly will favor the plan which found its first public announcement last week, while others there will be who undoubtedly will favor the "old order of things." Senator Crane's visit is to be followed by calls from Vice President Sherman and Representative Loudenslager, of New Jersey. Both Mr. Sherman and Mr. Loudenslager are known as the warm friends and supporters of Speaker Cannon. These two gentlemen are coming ostensibly to talk over the plans for the congressional campaign. Mr. Loudenslager is in charge of the New York headquarters of the republican congressional committee. Representative McKinley, of Illinois, chairman of the congressional committee, is also expected to be at Beverly this week. He is also a friend of the speaker, but he remarked rather significantly a few days ago that he did not know that Mr. Cannon would again be a candidate for the presiding chair in the house.

Cannon Won't Be Consulted.

In this connection it can be stated that in their move to block any of Mr. Cannon's aspirations for the future, the new element in administration circles will not consult the speaker or his friends. They feel that it will take very little more handwriting on the wall to show the Cannon adherents that there is going to be a change.

Whether Mr. Crane and those who have been acting with him are going to be able to accomplish all they have set out to accomplish, of course, remains to be seen. They appear entirely sanguine. They have secured from Mr. Aldrich his defense as to the rubber tariff charges, and a positive reiteration of the statement that he soon is to be out of politics for good. They feel that the Cannon situation is practically handling itself. Secretary Ballinger appears to bethe only chance for a stumble. They still adhere to September 15, however, as the date for his retirement. Senator Crane had a long and thorough talk with the secretary at Minneapolis. If President Taft has had any doubts as to the moves made by Mr. Crane, there may be a thorough clearing up of these on Tuesday.

Taft Wants to Please the West.

One of the main objects of the proposed new order of things, it can be stated, is to bring the administration more in touch with the people and spirit of the west. This is probably due to the important position which Secretary Norton has assumed in the affairs of the administration. Mr. Norton is from Chicago and is in sympathy with the views of the people who live in that section. Senator Crane may be looked upon in the rearrangement as the representative in New England. But Mr. Crane has extensive business interests in the west and has kept himself in touch with western affairs. In this connection it is recalled that Senator Aldrich, in visiting the middle west last year, announced that it was his first trip to that section in something like twenty years.

There may or may not be significance in the fact that Charles D. Hilles, assistant secretary of the treasury, and one of the "young men" of the administration, has decided to stay a while longer in his present position. Mr. Hilles had made plans some time ago to return to business life in October. The announcement that he will remain a factor in the administration comes after the laying of reorganization plans. The president is very fond of Mr. Hilles and is said to have great confidence in his political sagacity.

"Nick" Longworth "Near" Insurgent.

There is a report around Beverly that Representative Nicholas Longworth has developed some near insurgent leanings of late, and he, too, it is said, is being consulted about "the new order."

Some significance may be attached to the fact that President Taft is going to spend a week or ten days in Washington after his visit to St. Paul on September 5. He will have a meeting of his cabinet there on September 10. By that time the report of the Ballinger investigating committee may have been made public. The committee has announced its purpose of not waiting for congress to meet before announcing its findings.

Lloyd C. Griscom, president of the New York county committee, who spent the night at Burgess Point as a guest of President Taft, left early today for New York. Mr. Griscom, the president and Secretary Norton sat up until after 2 o'clock this morning discussing the political situation.

Taft and the New York Row.

The president, it can be stated, is taking the one position with all of his New York callers that the party leaders in that state must get together prior to the convention. He wants harmoney. The only split seems to be on the queston of the platform declaration as to direct primaries. The president says he sees no reason why a satisfactory solution of this problem cannot be found.

GRAND THEATER TO OPEN WITH "ISHMAEL" SEPT. 9

Paper has already been received for the first show which will be seen at the Grand theater this season, and while it will not be the opening of a new house, the chances are that as much interest will be manifested in the opening attraction, since all shows will be furnished by a new set of producers.

The first show will be "Ishmael," booked for Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee, September 9-10.

Of course, it is possible that later on a change may be made and a show brought in before this date, but it is generally believed this will be the opening attraction.

The opening will be a little later than usual. As a general thing, the Grand is thrown open to the public about the last two or three days of August. As a rule, however, the first few shows are "feelers," as it were, with the first-class attractions coming in about the first of October.

The opening last season was a rather disastrous one. Tim Murphy was scheduled to open in "My Boy." As it was his first year under William Brady, and the play was a new one, and a rather ambitious effort, everybody was anxious for an auspicious start of the season.

Mishaps proved many, however. Somehow the baggage car got stranded in some out-of-the-way place and the company arrived with even less than usual of the make-up materials. They had no costumes and were obliged to utilize their traveling clothes and buy all make-up material in Atlanta. "My Boy" could not be produced, and it was necessary to change the piece to a very old play, and a very much beloved favorite, "Old Innocence."

Murphy is still under the management of Brady, and since Brady joined the independents some time ago, his shows will be seen at the Grand this year just as they were last.

No date has yet been announced for the opening of the Orpheum theater, with the Klaw & Erlanger attractions. The "syndicate" and the "independents" are both moving slowly, apparently desirous not to tip their hand to the other side.

The Orpheum, like the Grand, is in excellent shape. It could be put in readiness for any kind of a show within two days at the outside.

In construction and convenience, the Orpheum is one of the most desirable houses in the city. With the attractions "right," there is every reason for predicting a land office business.

The impression prevails among theatrical people in Atlanta that the population is quite sufficient to suport every house planned. It is merely a question of, "Is the show worth the price?"

The Orpheum has had a rather varied history for a young house.

It was first known as the El Dorado, at which time it was used for stock. At this house, while "Ten Nights in a Barroom" was being played, Mrs. Carrie Nation was brought to Atlanta as an added attraction. The man who conducted her trip here is now in Atlanta, conducting a religious campaign among the young people.

At the close of that season. "Glorious Betsy," a Shubert show, was brought to Atlanta, but Marry Mannering was ill and her understudy took her part.

The next year the house was leased for vaudeville, with Ben Kahn as the manager. Then Jake Wells took control and Hugh Cardoza became manager.

Then the Forsyth was leased, vaudeville took a move and the Orpheum was left dark. ROBERT MORAN.

HOMOSASSA FISHING CLUB SUBSCRIBES $100 TO TECH

Following the suggestion made in The Constitution yesterday morning by J. C. A Branan, the prominent business man, that Atlantans raise the $15,000 needed to secure the $35,000 given by the general assembly to the Georgia Tech, the Homosassa Fishing Club yesterday, through its president, George S. Lowndes, subscribed $100 to this cause. Another subscription during the day was that of $5 from L. J. Callahan.

The letter of subscription from the fishing club follows:

"Editor Constitution: I note with pleasure the move that has been put under way to raise for the Technological school the $15,000 by public subscription to make the $35,000 appropriated by our legislature available. You may put down $100 for the Homosassa Fishing Club. It should not take ten days to raise this money for the plan suggested.

"Yours,

"GEORGE S. LOWNDES, Pres."

Mr. Branan was greatly pleased with the subscription of the fishing club, stating that now the Homosassa Club has led the way, he believes a number of other clubs will be as generous to a movement which has for its purpose the enlargement of one of the south's greatest colleges.

HYMNS, RITUAL AND SERMON WERE DELIVERED IN ESPERANTO

Washington, August 14.—Delegates to the International Esperanto Congress, which will open here tomorrow morning, attended services conducted in Esperanto at St. Paul's Episcopal church today. The whole service, hymns, ritual and sermon were in the universal language. The ritual was read by Rev. Paul F. Hoffman, of Baltimore, and Rev. James M. Smiley, of Annapolis, preached the sermon, using for his text: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

In the afternoon several hundred delegates were escorted about the city and tonight a concert was given at which soloists sang in Esperanto and a chorus rendered "La Espera," the Esperanto anthem.

The formal proceedings of the congress will begin tomorrow morning when an address will be delivered by Dr. Ludwig L. Seamonhof, inventor of the language. H. W. Yeamans, of Detroit, vice president of the American Esperanto Association, will preside, in the absence of President John Barrett, who is ill in New York.

Nothing but Esperanto is used by the delegates in conversation and four Washington policemen, who were taught the language in a few weeks by Dr. Edwin O. Reed, are stationed at the congress headquarters to answer questions in the new tongue.

It Is Believed That Miss Benigus Was Killed by Burglars.

Abilene, Kan., August 14.—Miss Bertha Benigus, aged 20, daughter of a merchant of this place, was found dead in her room at the home of her parents this morning. The girl had been chloroformed and her hands were tied behind her back. Her head was covered with pillows and blankets. The police believe that the girl was murdered by burglars. Miss Benigus was to have been married tomorrow night.

EDITOR SCOTT AT REST.

Body Interred in Cemetery Overlooking Williamette Valley.

Portland, Ore., August 14.—Under the pines of River View cemetery, which overlooks the Willamette valley and the city in whose history he had played an important part, the men of Oregon laid to rest today the body of Harvey Winfield Scott, late editor of The Portland Oregonian. The funeral services at the home were private. At the grave services were in charge of the Masonic fraternity.

The pallbearers included Colonel Alden J. Wilson, of Seattle; Jay Bowerman, acting governor of Oregon; Senator Chamberlain, former Congressman A. C. George, of Portland, and former Senator Fulton.

BIG WHITE CITY GOES UP IN SMOKE

double quick to aid the police in clearing the great grounds. This was accomplished in fair order, except within the limits of the Kermesz, where the vast crowds became entangled in an almost inextricable mass, fighting desperately to find an escape from the flames which swept viciously through the tinderlike structures. Soon the enormous facade tumbled in ruins.

Small Loss of Life.

Considering the rapidity of the flagration the small loss of life is marvelous. So far as is known, up to a late hour tonight, only two are dead. The injured, as officially announced, number 30, but probably many hundreds received minor hurts.

As the flames reached the menagerie it was decided to shoot the beasts, but the heat drove back the soldiers and the animals were left to their fate.

Looters Get to Work.

The fire was finally got under control, but the Belgian and English sections are in ruins, while all the other sections, including the American, were partly destroyed.

Bands of thieves engaged in pillage and a soldier was stabbed while attempting to arrest three men whom he found rifling a jewelry exhibit.

The aggregate loss will be enormous. The diamond exhibitors are heavy sufferers.

The loss in the exposition fire is estimated at $100,000,000.

All the Archives Burned.

Many jewel exhibitors were uninsured. In the French art section the priceless Gobelins, paintings and sculture were ruined, as were the rich treasures in the English, Belgian, Persian and Turkish sections. All the archives were burned, and it will, therefore, be impossible to confer medals and diplomas.

The fire was due to a short circuit. In addition to the panic that prevailed, there were several minor panics at other points within the grounds, and women and children were crushed down in the rush. Some of the wild animals escaped from their cages and added terror to the scene. It is believed that several of them are still at large.

The White City Described.

Belgium's white city stood near the end of the Avenue Louise, the fashionable park drive which, on the west side of Brussels, leads out to the beautiful Boid de la Cambre. The national building, that of the Belgian section, rose majestically on a slight elevation facing the main entrance. To the left of the main building was the Kermesz. A magnificent quadrillateral of gardens was surrounded by the four concessions of France, Germany, Holland and Italy. The Italian pavilion was built after the renaissance style of the fourteenth century. The German section was grouped around the main pavilion. Eight large halls were devoted to exhibits of railroad companies, agricultural machines, art and education. The Netherlands section included an elevated roadbed.

Feafures of French Section.

One of the most striking features of the French section was the palace of agriculture and horticulture, special pavilions being devoted to Tunis, Madagascar, Algeria, Western Africa and Indo-China. The Spanish pavilion offered a remarkable reproduction of the Alkambra palace at Grenada. The court of lions and several of the ruins of state were represented in which the Spanish exhibited some of its national treasures, such as tapestries, paintings, armors and jewels of the former royal families.

An interesting feature of the fair was the house of Rubens, which was the official pavilion of Antwerp. Besides representative exhibits of all branches of local activity, the pavilion contained a retrospective exhibition of Flemish art of the Rubens period. It was announced some time before the opening of the exhibition that many of the leading museums of the world would contribute masterpiece in their possession.

King Albert inaugurated the colonial section of the exhibition on April 30.

The American Exhibit.

The United States congress failed to grant an appropriation for the purpose of an American exhibit at the exposition, but a section of 25,000 square feet was set aside for Americans on the assurance of the National Association of Manufacturers that the space would be filled. A number of private exhibitors united in the construction of a small American section.

The space occupied by the entire exposition was about 200 acres, 40 acres of which was occupied by buildings.

"HOME-COMING" FEATURE OF GEORGIA STATE FAIR

One of the features of the Georgia state fair, which will be held in Macon from October 26 to November 5, under the auspices of the Georgia State Agricultural Society, will be the "home-coming of former Georgians."

The Macon Chamber of Commerce is making every effort to make this feature a decided success, and is doing all in its power to secure the names of 5,000 citizens of other states, former Georgians, who will pay a visit to their former home state.

It is believed that once they are persuaded to return home and see for themselves the great strides made here, the impulse to return will be strong enough to bring them back for keeps.

SPAIN CAUSES POPE MUCH AFFLICTION

But He HopesThat "the Good Cause Will Triumph."

Rome, August 14.—The pope, in speaking with reference to the Spanish question during the course of an audience which he gave to a prominent officer recently, said the events in Spain and the efforts of the anti-clericals, supported by irreligious forces abroad, had caused him much affliction, but at the same time had afforded an opportunity for a splendid manifestation of loyalty and devotion to the church and the pontiff himself from the Spanish people, who are by tradition Catholic.

The pope added that addresses, telegrams and letters had been received from every part of Spain, assuring the holy see of complete support, while the discipline and strength of the clergy and their harmony with the Episcopacy were above praise.

The pope concluded with the hope that this time the good cause would triumph, as the situation appeared so favorable to the church that unless some great change occurred it would probably not be necessary even to answer the last note from Premier Canalejas, but merely await the reopening of the cortes when the majority would dispose of the premier who had betrayed the Spanish nation.

No Foreign Adviser.

Pekin, August 14.—The Chinese government has decided to employ no foreign diplomatic adviser for the future, a decision which has come as a surprise and, to some extent, a disappointment to the foreign communities of the Far East. The Wai Wu Pu, the foreign governing board, will depend in the future on the views and opinions which are held regarding foreign affairs by those of its own people who have had long experience in the diplomatic consular services abroad.

Promptness and Safety

YOU might be able to find banks whose buildings are much more pretentious than is the ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK building, or whose interior fittings are more elaborate; but when it comes down to genuine business methods, where prompt and accurate transactions are of prime importance, and where absolute security is demanded, there is positively nothing to be desired beyond what is offered each separate depositor, large and small, by this old established institution.

For nearly half a century it has faithfully and advantageously served a critical public; and today stands as one of the leading banking institutions of the entire south.

Your account is respectfully solicited.

GERMANY'S NEXT EMPEROR PLANS OFFICIAL TOUR OF THE WORLD SOON

Crown Prince Frederick William, of Germany, is to soon start on an official tour of the world, going first to India, China and Japan, as the personal representative of his father, Emperor William. Arrangements have been made for the reception of the heir to Germany's throne in India through the British foreign office. The complete program for the royal trip has not been made up, but it is practically settled that Prince William will enter the United States from a Pacific coast port, and visit all important parts of the nation. Crown Princess Cecille will not accompany him, it is now said. The mode of travel, whether it be by war vessel or regular passenger steamer, has not been announced.

WITH BARE HANDS HE CHOKED TWO MEN TILL THEY WERE DEAD

Marine, Ill., August 14.—John Burton, an amateur wrestler, of Alton, Ills., early this morning choked two men to death with his bare hands following a quarrel. Burton had come here to engage in a contest. He is under arrest, but claims that his two victims attempted to rob him.

Gus Wentz and Lewis Welbrecht were the two men whom Burton killed. The latter is a powerful man, 6 feet 3 inches in height and weighs 220 pounds.

6,000 NEWSBOYS GUESTS OF "BIG TIM" SULLIVAN

The Newsies Were Entertained at New York Theater.

New York, August 14.—Six thousand newsboys left the street this afternoon and were the guests of "Big Tim" Sullivan at a local theater, where they remained for the rest of the day enjoying an "wuxtra" long bill, especially arranged for them. The big leader, who was once a newsboy himself, occupied a box in the theater and when the "newsies" demanded that he make a speech he left his seat and gave them some advice.

"My advice to every newsboy in this city," he said, "is not to drink, and never tell a lie. And when you're selling papers day by day, always keep one back. Read it, and read it well, for it is better than all the libraries in the world. If you do that you will put yourself on an equal footing with the sons of millionaires who graduate from colleges."

Sheppard Lowers Record.

New York, August 14.—Melvin W. Sheppard, the crack middle-distance runner of the Irish-American Athletic Club, lowered the 600-yard record today when he covered the distance in 1:10 4-5. It was the fastest time ever recorded for the distance, cutting one-fifth of a second from "Tommy" Burke's figures, which have stood fourteen years. He also set new figures for the 500 and 550 yards, with :57 3-5 and 1:04 respectievly.

Gallagher's hope for Mayor Gaynor's recovery makes it unanimous.

There is a movement on in Charleston to develop "inside waterways." And Charleston a dispensary town!

Heyburn's latest performances make it appear that he is in the long-eared and hoarse-voiced class all by himself.

Ballinger out; Cannon to follow, says a news item, from which it would appear that the republicans need a new batting order.

A western paper remarks that the cruelest blow of all is to send a man a "marked copy" of a newspaper and not mark anything in it.

Kansas City has gained 51 per cent in population in ten years. When that city sees the figures for Atlanta she will grow green with envy.

The Kansas bride who failed to kill her husband after three efforts, and then committed suicide, evidently believed in the survival of the fittest.

News reports to the effect that John D. Rockefeller is taking whisky baths has doubtless called forth many heartfelt sighs at absence of conservation.

The Kansas City Post thinks that the average American young man is too warlike to make a good militiaman. Too much work and too little war.

The riots in Italy over high house rents are accomplishing their purpose by reducing the number of tenants. Efficacious, but rather hard on the census.

Governor Patterson, whose meddling with the law caused a storm of condemnation, now roasts President Taft for meddling with Tennessee politics.

The regulars who were ordered out to fight forest fires will probably not agree with the militia in the statement that the American soldier's life lacks strenuosity.

A headline says "Roosevelt Goes to the Farmers." Did anyone intimate that, being such an expert with the muckrake, he would find himself perfectly at home?

There were thirty-seven divorce cases heard in one morning's session of Bibb superior court. The complaints ranged from hook worm to psychic cruelty.

The announcement of a new short line between Atlanta and Chattanooga means much towards the development of one of the most fertile sections of the state.

The combination effected between the Chattanooga Southern railroad and the Rome and Northern will give Rome and Chattanooga at least two additional trains into Atlanta daily. The Chattanooga Southern, which already runs to Bronco, Walker county, Georgia, will extend its line to Trion, in Chattooga county, while the Rome and Northern will extend its line to Trion from Gore, its present terminus. The Chattanooga Southern will build from Rome southward to Rockmart, from which point the tracks of the Seaboard Air Line will be used into Atlanta.

Thus more of the fertile valleys of north Georgia, the development of which has been impeded by the lack of railroad facilities, will be opened up, and still another step taken toward the progress of the entire state.

THE PRESS AND GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Stressing the fact that, at the ultimate analysis, the unremitting publicity afforded by the newspaper is the mainstay of good government everywhere, The Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette thus comments upon recent exemplifications of the principle:

> In a recent issue of The Forum, Julius Chambers offers a comment on the Des Moines situation of much wider application than he makes. Mr. Chambers says:
> "In Des Moines the mayor and commissioners rely upon the local press to keep every department active and clean. Every branch of city administration is an open book to the reporters, and they are encouraged to investigate constantly. The press and citizens lean on each other. Mutually they assist the mayor and his council. Warfare does not exist between the press and the public officials. They work together. I am assured by a student of the Des Moines experiment that not a sinecurist exists in the entire municipal machinery. If an incompetent has been inherited from past history, the mayor thanks the press for pointing out the dereliction."
> The newspapers and city administration everywhere should work together in the only relationship permissible for the public good, that of service on the one hand, and absolute frank publicity on the other. The centralized government plan, like any other plan of direct popular government, is succeeding very largely in the degree that publicity is fixing responsibility.

An overwhelming proof of these assertions is offered in the relation of publicity to the Roosevelt administration.

Had it not been for the detailed and intelligent handling the press, almost without regard to partisan distinction, gave to the preachments of the former president, the nation would not have undergone a marvelous era in which the public conscience was quickened to an extent even now visible.

We use that illustration because it is of recent date and plain enough to impress the most casual observer.

Numerous other instances of the safeguarding functions of the press, in city, state and nation, intrude themselves every day upon the attention of the thoughtful.

If the rascal and the incompetent is driven out of public life, it is because the publicity of the newspaper makes it impossible for him to maintain his station.

If good men and able are sustained against the attacks of malice or private interests, credit again is due to the vigilance and conscientiousness of the newspaper, acting in common with the quick response of the public.

It is noteworthy, also, that this almost incalculable power is seldom abused, or at least, it is not abused with persistence. For, should the venal newspaper seek to deceive the public, there are a dozen other honest papers to warn the people and circumscribe the influence of the erring brother.

It is, as a matter of fact, doubtful if what we call democratic government would be a possibility without the strong sustaining arm of twentieth century publicity.

And wherever, as in Russia or other backward countries, the influence of the press is limited, there also is either stagnation or anarchy.

GALLAGHER—PISTOL-TOTER.

"Now that another citizen has packed a gun to the detriment of this nation," remarks The Denver Times, "is it not time that, as a nation, we set our faces against this custom?"

It is.

The Constitution has been insisting upon such a reformation for a good many years, with an added accent within the past eight or nine months.

In every American commonwealth there are laws against the carrying of concealed weapons.

If they are enforced undeviatingly and with rigidity, there is just cause to believe that crimes growing out of violations can, within a few years, be materially diminished.

Gallagher's testimony was to the effect that he had packed the revolver, with which he committed his crime, for an interval stretching over several months.

No one, of course, not gifted with second sight could have known that he was violating the law and sought his prosecution.

But making it more difficult for the average pistol-toter, once arrested, to get away with a nominal fine, sentencing him to stripes and depriving him, perhaps, of his citizenship, would "put a crimp" in the practice, without regard to section.

There will be found constitutional kildees throughout the nation, as in Georgia, to object to such decided measures.

Evidence accumulates that thoughtful citizens everywhere are getting ready to override their obstructionism.

DROPPING CARGO IN A STORMY SEA.

According to the present program handed down rather authoritatively, Secretary of the Interior Ballinger is to walk the plank by September 15, thus ridding the administration and the republican party of an almost intolerable handicap in the coming fall elections.

The news comes simultaneously from Beverly, in what appears to be an inspired dispatch, that Uncle Joe Cannon is also marked for slaughter by members of his own organization, in the hope that his elimination from the equation may retrieve what seems now to be an almost sure defeat.

If, as the reports indicate, President Taft has given his sanction to the effort to pry loose two of the most serious obstacles to republican success, it may safely be assumed that tremendous pressure has been centered on the good-natured and loyal Ohioan.

Up to within a few weeks ago he had remained faithful to Ballinger, and had evinced no inclination to even criticise Cannon.

Representations regarding the disastrous effect of Uncle Joe's pernicious activities in Iowa and Kansas must have made a vivid impression upon the president's mind to lead him to such a decided step.

Of course, all this eleventh-hour scurry is a desperate effort to drop cargo and lighten the ship in the teeth of the gale of national disapproval.

Will the expedient prove effectual?

The chances are that it will not.

It has been too long delayed, in the first place, and the vessel is already in the breakers; in the second, the American people have so often been made the victims of similar outrageous attempts to deceive, it is almost incredible they should now take seriously this latest attempt to trade upon their credulity.

HOBBLING THE HOBBLE.

The Washington (D. C.) Times gravely inquires: "Is there a conspiracy against the hobble skirts?"

We are unable to answer with accuracy, not enjoying the distinction of being in the confidence of the conspirators.

But it would be by no means surprising.

Some men, a very few, criticised and sought to outlaw the so-called "peek-a-boo" shirtwaist.

The "picture hat" came in for a terrific lambasting.

The "sheath-gown" was greeted with anathemas, the thunders of which continue to roll.

Even the inoffensive and entrancing hat pin, the rat, the roll and the pompadour have at divers times engaged the activities of that ladylike variety of gentlemen with more time than composure.

So it need not occasion amazement should mere man, not satisfied with running the government, seek also to regulate the styles in which the eternal fair shall more or less delight our eyes.

But our contemporary need harbor no morbid fears. The women go right onward, wearing what they please, where they please, and they would lose half their charm if they didn't.

THE COURTSHIP OF A DUKE.

The old aphorism about the world and a lover is being exemplified anew in the case of the Duke of the Abruzzi, who is a suitor for the hand of Miss Katherine Elkins of West Virginia.

This international courtship has been in progress for several years. It has been the talk of several capitals, and finally was treated as a closed incident.

None of the elements of a romance were missing. A chance meeting, a sudden and violent attachment, objections from the king and queen of Italy, and a disappointed young man who bids adieu to his beloved and seeks solace in climbing the dangerous Himalayan mountains.

Possibly Americans have shown more interest than usual in the courtship of the young duke, because he has displayed in many ways the spirit of American independence and daring in addition to the world-old spirit of the lover.

To the Italian duke belonged the credit of having penetrated farthest north, before the recent exploit of Lieutenant Peary. He is also a mountain climber of skill and daring.

Hence a telegram to Miss Elkins in Switzerland, advising her that Abruzzi is "arriving this evening," is considered of enough human interest to hold a place on the front page of most American dailies.

The suit of a duke for a beautiful and popular American girl, the daughter of a United States senator, and a millionaire also, has an element of world interest that is not overlooked by the keen managing editor.

Letters From People

Regarding "Land Show."

Editor Constitution: The movement you have inaugurated having for its object the bringing together of those who have lands to sell and those who would buy, deserves the serious consideration of all who have the upbuilding of our state at heart.

Let the unused lands of Georgia be divided into small farms and sold to practical farmers, or those who have the making of practical farmers in them, at reasonable prices and upon reasonable terms, and in a few years you will see prosperous homes from the mountains to the sea.

These old red hills have a happy way of answering the intelligent husbandman with bountiful crops, and if those who are now renting or cultivating the lands of others on the share system are given the square deal, a sympathy that really means something and that encouragement that amounts to more than an indulgent nod, things will be done in Georgia that will stagger the imagination.

The plan you suggest, however, cannot be carried to a successful finish unless the hearty cooperation of men of brains, inspired by a practical and patriotic purpose, can be enlisted. The crooning call of old mother earth finds a responsive chord in the heart of every normal man at times, and a new era having been ushered in which removes so many of the obstacles that handicapped the tillers of the soil of only a few years ago, together with the fact, now patent to all, that a new adjustment of the ratio between producer and consumer must be made, gives additional force to the work you have placed your hands to.

As I see it, the haphazard custom that has hitherto prevailed in rural districts of building homes remote from each other has contributed much to the discontent which has resulted in driving the country boy to the more populous localities, though it may be that this story is the crux of the whole matter

A man riding along a country road came to a field of corn and observing a little "shaver" who had just reached the end of his row, stopped and asked him how much he got for hoeing corn. He was startled by the reply: "I don't git nothing if I hoe it, but I gits h— if I don't."

If the community idea, which is, after all, the "neighborhood" on a larger scale, could be injected into your plan it would go far to making it a success. This plan, aside from making it safer for the homes of the farmer, would add immeasurable to the social and intellectual life.

The day of the broad acres and slipshod methods of culture is giving away to few acres from which a succession of crops will be grown to perfection. We are now standing on the very threshold of a new era and NOW, more than at any time in the past, is the time for those who would become citizens indeed to secure a home with a sufficient number of acres to sustain it.

Some American humorist has pithily observed that he had known of men giving up their lives in defense of their home, but never a one in defense of his boarding house. Moral: Secure homes.

Good roads, telephones, home amusements, now in reach of all; good preparatory schools, the congressional district schools worked up to their limit of usefulness, and good churches, where the gospel of the "Eternal Now" is preached in all its fullness will place Georgia at the very forefront, and you will not so often see the farmer boy shaking the dust of the old homestead from his feet as a testimony against it.

SUES G. S. & F. RAILWAY FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

W. M. Elder, of Worth, Ga., Alleges That He Was Injured in a Wreck.

Perry, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—W. M. Elder, of Worth, Ga., has filed complaint for $10,000 damages against the Georgia Southeri and Florida Railway Company.

E der alleges that he was a passenger on the train of the defendant company when the northbound train collided with the "Shoo-fly" near Bonaire, Ga., on the evening of February 14, of this year; that he was seriously injured, from which injuries he will never entirely recover. His attorney is J. B. Jackson, of Gray, Ga.

Motorcycle Run to Atlanta.

Macon, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—Ten or more of the members of the local Motorcycle Club left early this morning for a run to Atlanta and return today. Among them were several makes of machines and the best riders of the community, among them being Emmett Arnett, Carlton Schatzman and Tom and Leyton Brown. The run was made in quick time and was an event of rare pleasure.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

Laugh on Other Fellow.

(From The Dublin Courier-Dispatch.)

One of our friends writes us as follows: "Two years ago some of the citizens laughed at your 'Brown and Bread proposition.' A panic was on under Smith, and we have had the best time since the war under Brown. The laugh is on the other fellow."

Trying to Change Schedule.

(From The Perry Home Journal.)

The new buildings being erected and the many buildings being improved in Macon give unmistakable evidence that prosperity is prospering in Georgia. Yet the Hon. Hoke Smith and his followers are trying to change the schedule. What is true of Macon is true of nearly all the other cities and towns in the state.

Making Votes for Brown.

(From The Dublin Courier-Dispatch.)

If the Joe Brown campaign committee will only circulate freely some of the literature that is being used to defeat him he will carry every county in the state. When the opposition newspapers call the governor "Monkey-face," "Bunch of Sickly Whiskers," etc., they make votes for Brown every time.

Progressive Prosperity.

(From The Oglethorpe Echo.)

They now call it "progressive democracy" that is opposing the reelection of Governor Brown. Maybe that's what it is, but what is most needed is "progressive prosperity" among the people of the state, and that is what we have had to a marked degree under "Little Joe's" administration.

Race Getting Warm.

(From The Newnan Weekly News.)

The gubernatorial race is getting to be quite warm in all parts of the state. The campaign is fast coming to a close, and The News firmly believes that the people, by their ballots on August 23, will say that they desire Hoke Smith to occupy the office of governor of this great state for the next two years.

GUBERNATORIAL RACE IN EMANUEL WARMS UP

Forces of Brown and Smith Each Pulling for Their Favorite.

Swainsboro, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—That both the Smith and Brown factions will endeavor to carry this county is evidenced by the great amount of interest that is being taken in the gubernatorial campaign. Meetings are being held in the various precincts and speeches made by prominent speakers on both sides, and as the days pass, more and more heated become the street corner discussions, which evidences the fact that there is no lack of enthusiasm for the two men who are seeking the gubernatorial chair.

The congressional race is also coming in for its share of interest. Both Edwards and Giles are touring the county speech-making, and placing before the people their respective claims.

The senatorial race, too, is exciting some interest. Both W. N. Knight and William Faircloth, the candidates aspiring for this honor, are well known in this county and each have their own circle of friends who will endeavor to carry the county for their respective favorites.

TO ANSWER HOKE SMITH AT JOE BROWN RALLY

Bibb Supporters of the Governor Are Planning Big Meeting.

Brown House, Macon, Ga., August 14. (Special.)—Tomorrow night at the superior court room the largest Brown rally of the present campaign will be held. A number of the best local speakers that can be secured will be heard and large numbers of people will be present to hear the issues discussed.

Local voters are largely divided as to legislative candidates and are making them "stand up and speak out" regarding the man they favor for governor. As a result those who favor the Brown side in politics usually attend the meetings and take the opportunity to tell the voters where they stand.

The meeting will be a very enthusiastic one. It will be the occasion of making answers to ex-Governor Smith in his Friday night address in Macon.

MACON MAN SEARCHES IN VAIN FOR DAUGHTERS

Feared the Young Women Met Foul Play—Left Home to Attend Theater.

Macon, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—A. F. Turner, an employee at the Payne cotton mills, has spent twenty-four hours in search for two young daughters who went away from home last night with friends of the family to witness attractions at Crump's park.

After they reached the playhouse they were not seen again, and the aged father feads they have met foul play.

An effort was made in the city last night to locate them, but this failed and no trace of them has been found.

STRENUOUS SENTENCES IMPOSED IN GEORGIA HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Editor Constitution: In accordance with your work during the last few months along the lines of judicial procedure in Georgia and improvement of conditions generally, I submit two copies of sentences taken verbatim from the minutes of Camden county, St. Mary's court. You will observe that the sentences are over one hundred years old and that the opinion of the people who enforced the law in those days and times in Georgia was strenuous. The letter R, which was branded on the shoulder stood for rogue. These copies of sentences from the old records may prove interesting reading to the public. They were very interesting to me as historical facts in our judicial system.

SALE OF SEASON TICKETS FOR LYCEUM COURSE BEGINS

The season tickets for the Auditorium Lyceum Course for the subscribers only will go on sale this morning at 9 o'clock at both Phillips & Crew and the Cable Piano Company's stores. They will be on sale for the subscribers two days only, August 15 and 16, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. each day. All those who have signed the slips subscribing for these tickets are requested to call during these hours on those dates and select their seats for the coming season. As an advance subscriber, each one will be allowed to buy up to the limit of ten tickets in case they should wish to get seats for some friends along with theirs.

The sale of tickets to the general public will be put on a little later, date of which will be given out in due time. The course of last season was so popular with the thousands who attended that it encouraged the management to give a much stronger course the coming season at the same nominal price of $1 for the season ticket to the ten attractions with 50 cents extra for reserving the seat for the season. It is expected that the entire capacity of the Auditorium will be sold out for the coming season.

The course will be opened in early October with a concert by Madam Louise Homer and assistant artists, including a famous pianist from the Metropolitan Opera house and an organist. Madam Homer will sing one or two numbers with the organ accompaniment. A letter has just been received by the management from Madam Homer from Paris, where she is singing in opera this summer, announcing that she has been engaged as the leading contralto for the coronation ceremonies to be held in London next month. She will come direct from this great occasion for her concert tour of the south, under the management of the Alkahest Lyceum System. The other nine attractions, many of whom are of equal merit with Madam Homer, are as follows:

Signor Giuseppe Campanari and Company.

The College Singing Girls and Walter Eccles. (Ten artists, including two opera singers.)

The Chicago Glee Club. (The best male quartette in America.)

Organ recital by Prof. Thos. W. Musgrove, of London, England. (Assisted by Mrs. Sheridan, contralto soloist.)

Mrs. Wm. Calvin Chilton, Monodramatist. (In an evening of southern stories from southern writers.)

FORMATION OF GRANT CLUB NOT STOPPED BY TELEGRAM

The formation of a Grant Club for the purpose of inducing Alderman John W. Grant to become a candidate for mayor will still go on despite the fact that Mr. Grant has telegraphed to F. A. Quillian that he will under no circumstances enter the race, but will support Mr. Quillian.

The Grant Club already has a thousand members, it is said, and a temporary secretary is mailing postal membership cards to all the voters of Atlanta, and this work will not be stopped.

It was stated Sunday by some of those who started the movement to get Mr. Grant in the mayoralty race, that the matter had gone so far now that it would be carried out, and that Mr. Grant, when he returned to the city the last of this month, will be presented with a petition signed by a large number of voters requesting him to become a candidate for mayor.

SHORTAGE REVEALED, HE'S AT POINT OF DEATH

Treasurer Ingersoll Became Unconscious When Discovery Was Made.

Biddeford, Maine, August 14.—Still at the point of death, Richmond H. Ingersoll, for fifty years treasurer of the York County Savings bank, which was closed Friday following the discovery of a shortage in his books, remained unconscious at his home tonight. He has been in this condition for three days as the culmination of a general break-down, and his recovery is not expected. The amount of the schortage is not yet known. Mr. Ingersoll has not yet been told, in his few lucid moments, that anything wrong has been discovered in the bank. He has been removed from his office as treasurer.

Fitzgerald's Zoo.

Fitzgerald, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—Fitzgerald boasts of a real zoological garden, if a small one. The Fireman's park, a small plat of ground surrounding the city hall, has been beautified and cared for by the members of the fire department until it is a spot to be proud of. Besides the plats of flowers, there are cages and pens containing a bear, deer, a monkey, foxes, alligators, crocodile, sharks, numerous small animals and birds, and the latest prize is a real sea cow or manatee. She is 13 months old, and weighs 250 pounds.

Dawson Schools Open Sept. 1.

Dawson, Ga., August 14.—(Special.) At a recent meeting of the board of education it was decided that the fall term of the Dawson public schools begin on Thursday, September 1. The board thought best to commence then rather than wait until the following Monday, as the two days intervening would be taken up by classifiying the pupils and allowing them time to procure from the treasurer of the board their admission cards.

Outcry Made Because Man-Bird Accidentally Crossed the Frontier.

Douai, France, August 14.—An outcry is being made by the German newspapers because a French aviator on Thursday last accidentally crossed the frontier, some of the papers suggesting that he ought to have been shot. CITY NEWS

W. H. Preston Is Ill—Reports yesterday were to the effect that W. H. Preston, acting recorder, was improving. Judge Preston was taken suddenly ill while presiding in the police court on Friday morning, since which time members of the city council have been taking his place.

Wrong Name Was Given—In publishing a communication, in which a number of suggestions were made for relieving the congested conditions, due to rush of traffic on certain streets, an error was made yesterday in The Constitution in the name of the author. The suggestions should have been credited to George N. Eakin, a well-known traveling salesman, who represents a large manufacturing concern in Atlanta.

Mass Meeting of Voters—A mass meeting of the voters of all the wards in the city and the districts in the county has been called at the county courthouse on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of hearing the candidates for county commission discuss the issues of the campaign. Dr. Horace Grant has promised to speak, and it is understood that other candidates will also attend.

Joseph W. Hill Home—Joseph W. Hill, publisher of the Atlanta city directory, and wife, have just returned from a month's trip through the Rocky mountains. While away Mr. Hill attended the sixth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, at Omaha, as a delegate from the Association of American Directory Publishers. On his return he attended the thirty-first triennial conclave of Knights Templass in Chicago, where he witnessed the largest parade of Knights Templars ever held in the world.

CLEVER THIEF SNATCHES MRS. JORDY'S DIAMONDS

Asheville, N. C., August 14.—A clever thief succeeded in getting away with a silver purse containing $500 worth of diamonds, three railroad tickets to New Orleans and about $15 in currency, the property of Mrs. J. Numa Jordy, wife of a prominent lumber man of New Orleans, last night, and has not yet been captured.

The couple were stopping at a local hotel, and after dinner Mrs. Jordy went over to a desk to write a letter. She left her purse on the table and went out on the porch for a moment, and in the meantime the thief grabbed it. Three detectives are employed in the case and sensational developments are expected.

COUNCIL SESSION THIS AFTERNOON

White Way Movement Will Come Up for Consideration.

The general council will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock, provided there is enough members in Atlanta to make a quorum. A number of the aldermen and councilmen are out of the city either on their vacation or on business trips, and it is exceedingly doubtful whether there will be enough of them present this afternoon.

Amongst some of the important matters to be taken up will be a report from the electric light committee recommending that the city accept from property owners and renters the new lighting system for the Great White Way on Peachtree and Whitehall streets, from Ellis to Mitchell, and on Mitchell from Whitehall to the Terminal station.

The tax committee will recommend an ordinance that will place an extra tax of $25 on all dealers in hay and grain who handle their goods in carload lots, and a special tax on brokers who handle fresh meats and provisions directly from the cars.

The street committee recommends that a special committee of three be sent on a trip to inspect street paving in eastern cities.

From the board of health will come a recommendation that a committee of four be sent on a trip to investigate how garbage is disposed of in other cities.

TO ADD A BURDEN OF $500,000,000

indicate, by an analysis, that the increases in operating expenses of the roads during the last ten years have been very heavy. The greatest single item of increase is in the cost of labor, which is estimated to be about 40 per cent of the expense of operation.

In classification territory the increase in cost of labor, according to the reports, has aggregated during the last decade about $80,000,000 a year, approximately $40,000,000 a year having been added during the last few months. Every other item of expense of operation has increased during the last decade, so that in the matter of operation alone the railroads of classification territory are paying out nearly $200,000,000 a year more than they paid out ten years ago.

Roads Must Justify Advances.

It will be necessary for the railroads under the existing law to justify their advances by affirmative proof of their necessity. In other words, the burden of proof of the reasonableness of the increases will rest on the carriers. It is the purpose of the commission to take a purely judicial view of the questions presented. It will act in no sense as a prosecuter of the railroads.

It will be represented at the hearings by one of its examiners, Frank Lyons, who will endeavor to develop any testimony that may tend to throw light upon disputed points. The great shipping organizations will be represented by J. H. Atwood, of Kansas City, Mo., and Francis B. James, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The roads will be represented by their general counsel, the big systems like the Pennsylvania, the New York Central, the Erie and the Baltimore & Ohio taking the burden of the work.

The testimony will be heard by Judge George N. Brown, chief examiner for the commission.

LAND EXPOSITION INTERESTS STATE

Many Indorsements of Suggestion Received.

Editorial in The Constitution Proposing Show Praised by Secretary of Augusta Chamber of Commerce, Who Says Idea Is Excellent One.

With each succeeding day it becomes more and more apparent that the idea of a "land owners' exposition," recently suggested by The Constitution, has taken deep root in the minds of not only Atlantans, but of Georgians throughout the entire state. Letters expressing interest in the projects are being received daily, and prominent business men in all portions of the state are going on record as not only favoring the move, but as being willing to do all in their power to make the proposed meeting the success it deserves to be.

These gentlemen feel that the exposition would mark the beginning of a new epoch in Georgia's history; that with the exposition a success, a great stride forward will have been made in Georgia's development, and that neither Georgia nor Atlanta can afford to overlook an opportunity so pregnant with possibilities for the general good as is the proposed meeting.

Praise From Augusta.

In writing of the proposed exposition Saturday, W. C. Boykin, secretary of the Augusta chamber of commerce, praised the many good points of The Constitution's plan. Mr. Boykin has had considerably experience in bringing home-seekers to the south, and he believes that the proposed exposition would work wonders in this direction.

Among other things, Mr. Boykin said:

"I have read the editorial in The Constitution proposing a "land owners' exposition" in Atlanta with much interest, and think the ideas suggested therein are excellent. I had just been thinking over a plan to have a 'home-seekers' day' at our Georgia-Carolina fair in November next, to be extensively advertised in the north and west, but the suggestion of The Constitution for a state-wide movement to bring the land seeker and land owner together at some central point is better, because it would attract more attention and a larger attendance, both of land owners and land seekers.

"In quite a considerable experience that I have had in the work of bringing land seekers to the south, I have found that the southern landowners and the northern land seekers necessarily employ such widely different methods in farming that the one does not understand what the other wants and a great convention at Atlanta as the central point of land owners and land seekers, where the advantages and system of farming in the south could be shown by speeches and personal contact between the land owners and land seekers, would, in my opinion, prove to be the most effectual way of starting the tide of immigration here. The social intercourse between the two classes would result in a practical understanding of all the conditions and methods, and undoubtedly result in a great advantage to both.

"If the great caravan of farmers who are now wending their way to the cold and isolated northwest and Canada could be made to understand the advantages of the south, how easy it is to make a living here by raising their own feedstuffs and cotton as a money crop, and be properly informed of the impending great development in the south, they would come here rapidly, and such an exposition (or better, a convention), would accomplish more to that end than any one thing else at the present time."

To Act on Exposition Today.

The first definite action looking to putting into execution The Constitution's idea will be taken this afternoon, when the real estate men's association of this city takes up the matter.

The chairman of the public good committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Men's Association has called a meeting of his committee for 4 o'clock at the chamber of commerce rooms. T. J. Kelly, manager of The Constitution's publicity department, will go before the committee and explain in detail the proposed plan, after which the committee will take action on the matter. There is little doubt, it is believed, but that the committee will report favorably on the plan, as a number of the members have already publicly expressed their hearty approval of the idea.

MAYOR OF EL PASO AND FIREMAN KILLED

City Executive Sacrificed His Life in Effort to Warn Firemen.

El Paso, Texas, August 14.—W. E. Robinson, mayor of El Paso, lost his life at 9 o'clock this morning while endeavoring to warn a number of firemen of imminent danger from a tottering wall. At the same time Todd Ware, a fireman, was instantly killed and William Robinson and Dave Sullivan, also firemen, were injured, the latter perhaps fatally.

The casualties followed a fire which broke out in the store of Calisher Dry Goods Company and ruined it. The first had burned for nearly seven hours, and the unsafe condition of the walls so impressed Mayor Robinson that he left the sidewalk and approached the building to instruct the firemen to stop further work.

As he approached the building a large portion of brick wall fell, crushing Robinson and Ware and knocking the other men down. Mrs. Robinson witnessed the accident from the sidewalk.

Conservative estimates place the loss at $225,000. All losses covered by insurance.

BAKER HONORED BY ODD FELLOWS

He Will Head Atlanta Patriarchs Militant.

Major Baker Empowered to Select Officers to Assist Him in His Work --- Committees Are Appointed to Look After All the Details of Meeting.

The local members of the patriarchs militant degree of Odd Fellows met in the armory of Canton Dixie, corner Alabama and Broad streets, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock to formulate plans for the entertainment of members of this degree at the session of the sovereign grand lodge, which will be held here September 19 to 23.

Major Amos Baker, who served as an officer in the Georgia immunes during the Spanish-American war, was made captain of the Atlanta patriarchs militant for the coming meeting, and empowered to select officers to assist him. It will devolve upon Major Baker to handle the large gathering of people during the meeting, which will be one of the largest military gatherings ever seen here, it being estimated that 8,000 uniform members will be in attendance.

Several committees were appointed to arrange various details of the entertainment, and no pains will be spared in making the event one of the greatest in Atlanta's history.

The patriarchs militant is the highest uniform degree of Odd Fellowship, and, although numerically small in Georgia, it commands a large membership in many sections of the country. It is planned to confer the degree on all qualified members who are ready to take it during the session of the sovereign grand lodge.

ANGEL OF CRIMEA CALLED BY DEATH

day afternoon, when an attack of heart failure brought the end.

Her funeral will be as quiet as possible, in accordance with her wishes. During recent years, owing to her feebleness and advanced age, Miss Nightingale had received but few visitors. On May 12 last she celebrated her ninetieth birthday, and was the recipient of a congratulatory message from King George.

Florence Nightingale was born on May 12, 1820. She was the first woman to follow a modern army into battle as a nurse, and in the Crimean war gained the title of "Angel of the Crimea." She studied nursing under the Protestant Sisters of Mercy at Kaiserworth, Germany, and returned to England when the Crimean war broke out. She organized a corps of volunteer nurses, whom she led into the field, and was especially celebrated for her noble services at Scutari.

At the close of the war she was enabled by a testimonial fund amounting to $250,000, to found an institution for the training of nurses, the Nightingale home, at St. Thomas' hospital. She was also the means of calling attention to the unsanitary condition of camp hospitals.

In 1908 she received the freedom of the city of London. King Edward bestowed upon her the Order of Merit, the most exclusive distinction in the gift of the British sovereign. The membership of the order is limited to twenty-four, and it includes such men as Lord Roberts, Lord Wolesley, Field Marshal Kitchener, James Bryce, Prince Yamagata and Admiral Togo.

There is a strong feeling among the general public, and particularly among the military men, in favor of a public memorial for Florence Nightingale. There is little doubt, however, that her expressed wishes in this connection will be taken into consideration.

Not even the death of a royal personage could have called forth more universal expressions of regret and tributes of affection than appear in the English papers.

Black vs. White.

(From "A Question of Latitude," by a Richard Harding Davis in the August Scribner's, Fiction number).

According to the unprejudiced testimony of those who, before the war, in his own country, had owned slaves, those of the "Southland" were always content, always happy. When not singing close harmony in the cotton-fields, they danced upon the levee, they twanged the old banjo. But these slaves of the Upper Congo were not happy. They did not dance. They did not sing. At times their eyes, dull, gloomy, despairing, lit with a sudden sombre fire, and searched the eyes of the white man. They seemed to beg of him the answer to a terrible question. It was always the same question. It had been asked of Pharaoh. They asked it of Leopold. For hours squatting on the iron deck-plates, humped on their naked haunches, crowding close together, they muttered apparently interminable criticisms of Everett. Their eyes never left him. He resented this unceasing scrutiny. It got upon his nerves. He was sure they were evolving some scheme to rob him of his tinned sausages, or, possibly, to kill him. It was then he began to dislike them. In reality, they were discussing the watch strapped to his wrist. They believed it was a powerful juju, to ward off evil spirits. They were afraid of it.

One day, to pay the chief wood-boy for a carved paddle, Everett was measuring a bras of cloth. As he had been taught, he held the cloth in his teeth and stretched it to the ends of his finger tips. The wood-boy thought the white man always had given him short measure, and, at a glance, he could not recognize that this one was an Everett, of Boston.

So he opened Everett's fingers.

All the blood in Everett's body leaped to his head. That he, a white man, an Everett, had come so far to set these people free, should be accused by one of them of petty theft.

He caught up a log of firewood and laid open the scalp of the black boy, from the eye to the crown of his head. The boy dropped, and Everett, seeing the blood creeping through his kinky wool turned ill with nausea. Dunkenly, through a red cloud of mist, he heard himself shouting: "The black nigger! The black nigger! He touched me! I tell you, he touched me!"

4,000 PEOPLE HEAR CONCERT

Series of Free Recitals Proves Popular.

Entire Top Gallery Is Reserved for the Use of Negroes, Several Hundred Being Present. Music to Please All Tastes on the Program.

The second of the series of free Sunday afternoon concerts inaugurated by the Atlanta Music Festival Association was heard by an audience of about 4,000 at the Auditorium-Armory yesterday afternoon, hundreds being already present when the doors were opened at 3:30. The concert began at 4, by which time practically every part of the big Auditorium was comfortably filled.

Following the announcement by the association that the entire top gallery on the right of the Auditorium would be reserved for negroes, between 400 and 500 colored people were present.

The audience was an unusually attentive one, only a few leaving in the intermissions. The interest manifested was due in a large measure, to the varied nature of the program, music to please all tastes having been chosen.

By special request, variations on the "Star-Spangled Banner" were played in the place of the closing number on the program. Dr. Starnes' handling of his instrument in the rendition of the national song was still another revelation of his wonderful ability as an organist and his knowledge of the possibilities of the city's big instrument. Depicting in his variatons the roar and storm of a fierce conflict between battling armies, the organist kept the air of the song going all the time, with constant changes from the wild blast of the trumpet to the shrill pipe of the fife.

Next to this rendition of the national air the audience seemed to be best pleased with the Gounod "Ave Maria."

Using the echo organ in combination with the concert piano which is located in the center of the big organ, the organist made this the most effective, although the simplest number on his program. The beauty of the combinations used in this number gave it a charm which was irresistible.

The grand triumphant strain in which Schumann's "Finale from Etudes Symphoniques" is written, served excellent to bring out both the ability of Dr. Starnes and the capacity of the organ.

The next concert under the auspices of the association will be the second of the Thursday night pay concerts, at which time it is announced that Michael Banner will act as violin soloist. The tickets for these Thursday night concerts are 25 cents, or 10 cents a piece if bought in books of fifty.

TAFT WORRIED BY THE SILENCE

that he had decided on a third long trip. Starting some time in March he will go from coast to coast on a trip which will occupy about one month. The Colonel said today that while he was in Africa eight months ago he had accepted an invitation from Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, to speak at the University of California on charter day next March. He will go by the southern route. Only one other speech has been definitely settled on—at the Southern Commercial Congress in Atlanta, which will be made in March on the westward trip.

From Atlanta Colonel Roosevelt will travel through the south, making one speech in each state which he traverses. He probably will make a short stop at the Texas ranch of Cecil Lyon, republican national committeeman, who is an old friend. The return from California in all probability will be via the northern route. The exact time of the trip and the places at which speeches will be made have not been decided upon.

Gossip at the Capitol

Two members of the general assembly which has just adjourned will probably be in the race for governor two years hence. Hon. Joe Hill Hall practically announced his candidacy at a recent speech in Marietta.

Hon. Julian McCurry, president pro tem. of the last senate, is also being spoken of in this connection and will probably make the race as the north Georgia candidate.

Governor Brown signed the state auto registration bill on Saturday night at 7:30, just before leaving the office. The measure goes into effect September 1. The law requires every autoist in the state to register with the secretary of state. This registration will take the place of all municipal registration now required.

GENERAL LEE CHRISTMAS NOT TAKEN PRISONER

He and Bonilla Surrendered Voluntarily to the Guatemalan Authorities.

Port Barrios, Guatemala, August 14. General Manuel Bonilla, ex-president of Honduras, and General Lee Christmas, the American soldier of fortune, who recently were at the head of a revolutionary movement in Honduras, were not taken prisoners, but surrendered voluntarily to the authorities at Port Barrios. From there they were taken to Guatemala five days ago.

It is asserted that they surrendered because of the disarrangements of their plans, misfortune to one of Bonilla's boats, and the action of the British cruiser Scylla in giving pursuit to the Bonilla expedition. Bonilla is said to have given the governor of British Honduras assurances when he left Belize that he would not carry an armed expedition from there against Spanish Honduras, and the governor is declared to have been deeply aroused by subsequent developments in Spanish Honduras. The reason given for the surrender of the revolutionists to the authorities at Port Barrios is that they felt Guatemala would give them friendly protection.

THEATERS

At the Lyric.

Tonight at the Lyric theater Miss Emma Bunting and her company will be seen in the four-act play, "The Gambler," written by McKee Rankin, and used by him for several seasons as a starring vehicle.

It is a story of the west in the early days of gold mining, the scenes being laid in the state of Idaho. The story is one of intense human interest and of a type several grades higher than the so-called western melodrama. One of the most amusing scenes of the play is that in which Miss Bunting, in the character of Bessie Fairfax, plays a game of poker on the stage with Jack Mason, the part played by Mr. George Whitaker.

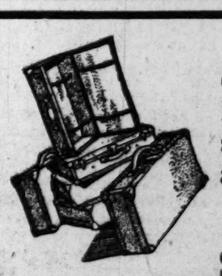

At the Bijou.

A splendid vaudeville offering will be presented this week at the Bijou, and judging from the list of acts announced it will be one of the most pleasing attractions of the year. Heading the list will be Walton and Brandt in songs, jokes and an up-to-date pianologue; Pollard, the sensational juggler, will offer some wonderful stunts in juggling; Charles Ledegar, the bounding Dutchman, will furnish the comedy on the bounding rope; Auten and Weyman, the original cork screw dancers, will be seen in their eccentric dances. These four vaudeville acts promise novelty, variety and class enough to make the bill very interesting. In addition to the splendid vaudeville, there will be illustrated songs and the best line of motion pictures that have ever been seen at the Bijou.

DICKINSON EXPLAINS TO THE FILIPINOS

Manila, August 14.—Jacob M. Dickinson, American secretary of war, has found it necessary to define the limitations of a cabinet officer to the Filipinos. At Lucena a reception was given in honor of Secretary Dickinson and Governor General Forbes, and one of the members of the assembly, who was presented to the secretary, urged immediate independence for the islands. Another assemblyman, as an alternative, urged a popular constitution and an elective senate.

Secretary Dickinson, in replying, stated that there were limitations to the position of a cabinet officer. He said that congress was the only place where the political status of the islands could be discussed.

Lots of folks are just snobs enough to judge you by your luggage. We've bags and suit cases that won't feel ashamed in the parlor car.

HOT CAMPAIGN IN NEBRASKA

Primaries of Both Parties Next Tuesday.

Republicans for County Option While the Democrats Oppose. Situation Complicated by Republican Insurgency and the Personality of Bryan.

Omaha, Neb., August 14.—Next Tuesday the state-wide primaries of all the political parties represented in Nebraska will be held. The campaign for nominations on the republican and democratic tickets has been very spirited, and the candidates numerous. The temperance issue, as involved in the proposition to substitute county option for the present local option law, has split both parties, and the situation has been further complicated by "insurgency" in the republican and the personality of William J. Bryan in the democratic party.

Full state and county tickets are to be nominated, as well as candidates for congress, and, under the "Oregon plan," party candidates for United States senator to succeed Senator Elmer J. Burkett will be chosen.

Republicans for County Option.

The question of county option was brought before both state platform conventions. Although opposed by most of the leaders of what is known as the regular faction of the party, it was adopted by a large majority of the republican delegates. On the other hand, in spite of the vigorous support of Mr. Bryan, the democratic convention declared against it.

The contest for the democratic indorsement for United States senator has been most vigorous between Gilbert M. Hitchcock, present congressman from the second (Omaha) district, and owner of the principal democratic newspaper of the state, and Richard J. Metcalfe, editor of Bryan's paper. Willis Reed is also a candidate.

For the republican senatorial indorsement there are five candidates, Elmer J. Burkett, the incumbent, and C. O. Whedon, of Lincoln, being regarded as leaders.

The Gubernatorial Fight.

For the gubernatorial nomination, the democrats have two candidates, both strenuous campaigners with strong followings—the present governor, Ashton C. Shallenberger, and James C. Dahlman, the "cowboy mayor" of Omaha. Unalterable opposition to county option is Dahlman's slogan, while Shallenberger takes a more conciliatory position, agreeing to sign such a bill if passed by the legislature. There are three republican candidates for this honor, but their campaign has been made more on personal grounds.

Congressmen John A. Maguire, democrat; James P. Latt, democrat, and George W. Norris, "insurgent" republican, have no opposition in their own parties. Congressman Moses P. Kinkaide, republican, has a fight on hand for the nomintion. Congressmen Hitchcock and Hinshaw are seeking renomination.

SOME FACTS ABOUT CANDIDATE PERRY'S RECORD.

Col. J. A. Perry, the lawyer who is trying to prevent the re-election of Hon. O. B. Stevens, the only farmer on the State Railroad Commission, is a man with a record—and a record that will not help him with the people of Georgia.

In 1900-1 he was a member of the House, and there voted against the Child Labor bill (See House Journal, 1900, p. 463.)

He voted against the Inheritance Tax bill (1901, p. 463.)

He voted against the Disfranchisement bill (1901, p. 514.)

In 1908 Candidate Perry denounced Port Rates; now he says he is for them, and is trying to ride into office on that issue. (Wonder how long he would "stick" if he were elected?)

He is now trying to defeat the only representative the farming interests of Georgia have on the State Railroad Commission, which is so vital to them.

But the farmers of Georgia are rallying to the support of their champion, Farmer "Obe" Stevens, and Lawyer-Candidate Perry might as well make up his mind to continue the practice of law.—Cedartown Standard. •••

WHEAT FIELDS OF WEST ARE NOT SO LARGE

Their Size Averages but Little More Than One Hundred Acres.

Washington, August 14.—Although the wheat fields of the far west are generally supposed to be of extended acreage, the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture has issued an estimate showing that in the states where these fields are largest their size averages a little more than 100 acres.

California alone is an exception to this rule, as in that state the average acreage reaches 169 acres. In North Dakota the average is 115 acres; in Washington, 110 acres, and Oregon, 105 acres. Although there are some enormous fields of wheat in these states, the smaller ones reduce the average size to that of an ordinary farm.

New England has the smallest wheat fields, the average acreage of such fields in Vermont being only three acres.

The value of both wheat and corn lands are greatest in Illinois, where the average value is said to be $84 an acre and $100 for corn. The central west shows prices ranging below those of Illinois. Land values in the southern sates are low, averaging $32 for wheat and $27 for corn land.

REGULARS HOME AFTER LONG TRIP

Seventeenth Completes 200-Mile Hike.

Regiment Returns After an Absence of Nearly Two Months Spent at Maneuvers in Chickamauga—Col. Van Orsdale Pleased With Trip.

In perfect condition and the best of spirits, the Seventeenth regular infantry marched on the parade ground at Fort McPherson yesterday morning and were dismissed after having completed a 200-mile hike from Chickamauga Park, where they spent the better part of two months taking part in the maneuvers held at that place.

The regiment reached the fort practically on scheduled time. It was only a few minutes after 9 o'clock when the music which announced the arrival of the command sounded over the parade ground and within less than 10 minutes the various companies had been dismissed and the men were thronging their quarters after an absence of almost exactly two months.

Regiment Is Dismissed.

There was little formality attendant upon the dismissal of the regiment after the fort was reached. Colonel Van Orsdale, who was in command, evidently realized just how anxious were the men to get to quarters, and it was only a short minute or more after the column had halted on the parade ground that the different companies were turned over to their first sergeants for dismissal.

The regiment was welcomed by the assembled ladies of the garrison, many of whom had not seen their fathers, husbands and brothers since the regiment left the fort.

Leaving Chickamauga on August 1 the regiment took a circuitous route to Atlanta so that the line of march would include just 200 miles. From Chattanooga the regiment marched to Rome; thence to Cave Springs. Tecumseh, Borden Wheeler Springs, Oak Level, Ala., and Tallapoosa followed in turn. From Tallapoosa the line of march led to the south to Bowdon; thence to Carrolton, and thence north again to Temple. From Temple the line of march lay along the regular route from Waco to Atlanta.

A Most Pleasant Trip.

In speaking of the trip, Colonel Van Orsdale, who was in command of the regiment throughout the march, stated that the trip was pleasant throughout. There was rain only two days and the roads were not dusty to any material degree. Camp was broken each day shortly before 5 o'clock, and by 10:30 the day's march of 13 miles or more had been completed and tents were again pitched. The men slept in shelter tents throughout the trip.

The men, Colonel Van Orsdale reports, were in perfect condition and spirits throughout. The marches were not long enough to become burdensome, and with exceptionally good weather both officers and men fared well.

Lieutenant John Hester Ill.

Lieutenant John Hester developed a case of typhoid fever en route and it was found necessary to send him direct to the post. Just as the regiment was reaching the fort Sunday the lieutenant was being transferred from his quarters to the hospital. It was stated last night that he is a very sick man. He was compelled to leave his command at Tallapoosa.

The Seventeenth developed two other cases of typhoid while at Chickamauga. Lieutenant George Byrd was the first to be attacked. He was transferred to the hospital at Fort Oglethorpe, where he is said to be convalescing. An enlisted man of the regiment also developed typhoid while at Chickamauga, but has practically recovered.

A Successful Trip.

Two battalions of the Seventeenth left Fort McPherson on June 17, going to Nashville, where they took part in the military tournament. From Nashville these battalions marched to Chickamauga Park, there joining the third battalion, which left Fort McPherson on June 28, going straight to Chattanooga. Company L, of the third battalion, remained at the fort here.

In speaking of the entire time spent away from the post Colonel Van Orsdale states that he has seldom had a more delightful trip of its kind, and never one from which the men and officers returned in any better condition. The colonel is highly pleased with the results of the trip as a whole.

BROWN FORCES OF FLOYD CLAIM COUNTY

Officers of Club Conducting a Systematic Campaign Among Voters.

Rome, Ga., August 14.—(Special.)—A few days ago President Walter B. Shaw, of the Brown Club of Floyd county, sent out a circular letter to the voters of the county, enclosing a postal card which the voter was asked to return signed if interested in the candidacy of the governor and willing to join the club. Although only a few days have lapsed since the cards were sent out, already 1,370 replies have been received by President Shaw and more are coming in by every mail.

The officers of the club declare that by the end of the week they will have a clear majority of the voters of the county enrolled as members. The registration is 4,167.

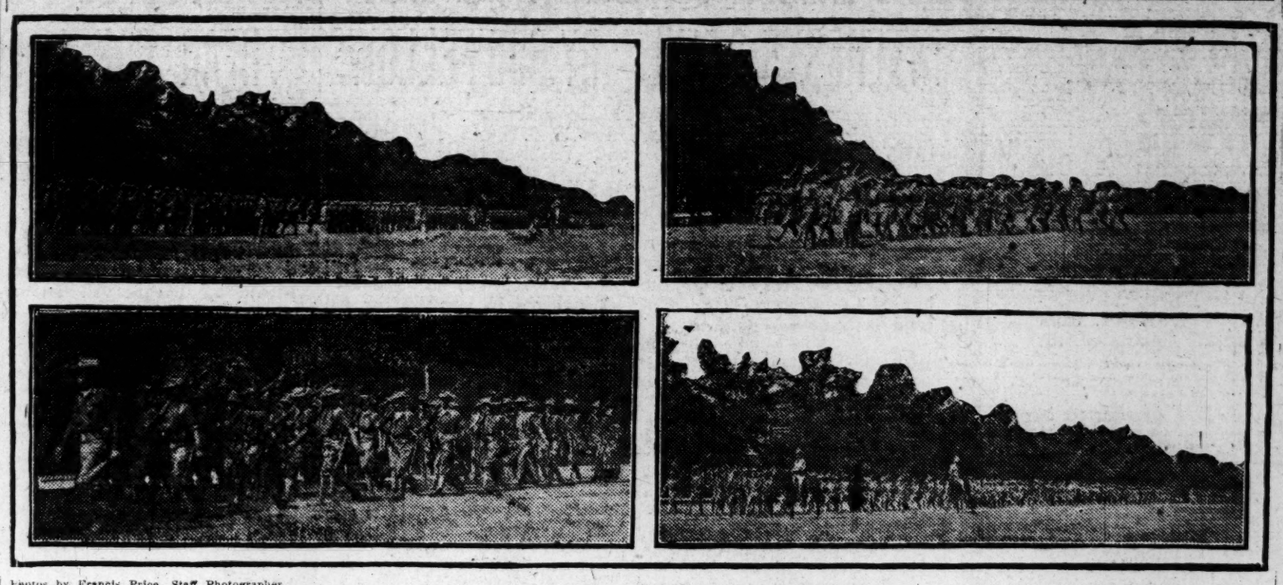

CHILD MORTALITY IN SUMMER

Every summer the newspapers are full of horrifying stories of the death list among infants and children and extremely old people. In nursing infants and children still being fed largely on milk this is usually due to the quality of the milk itself, and in aged people to a general weakening of the system because of extreme heat. Still, a great many of the deaths are due to digestive trouble, and these can usually be avoided by the timely use of a reliable laxative-tonic. There is no remedy for this purpose that lends itself better to the uses of children and aged people than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which for a generation has been the reliance of thousands of mothers and which is gaining in favor every year. This remedy, unlike a purgative, salt, laxative water or "infant medicine," contains nothing that is dangerous to the health of the weakest or youngest person, and its repeated use does not form a habit, as is the case with narcotic remedies for children. Go to your druggist this very day and buy a 50 cent or $1.00 bottle, and like thousands of other parents, keep it on hand for an emergency. You can obtain a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE by addressing

RIGHTS OF INDIANS UP TO HIGH COURT

30,000 Reds Will Be Affected by Decision of the Supreme Court.

Washington, August 14.—With the rights of some thirty thousand Indians in question, the supreme court of the United States will begin consideration, probably during the first week of the approaching term, of some of the most perplexing problems arising out of the relation of the United States to its wards. Among these are questions of citizenship and of authority over the lands of the individual Indians.

In 1902 congress passed an act for the allotment to the individual Indians of the Cherokee tribal lands in Oklahoma. One restriction was laid on the land—"lands allotted to citizens shall not in any manner whatever or at any time be encumbered, taken or sold to secure or satisfy any debt or obligation, or be alienated by the allottee or his heirs, before the expiration of five years from the date of the ratification of this act."

In 1904 congress authorized the secretary of the interior to grant a right of way for oil and gas pipe lines through the lands thus allotted to the Indians. In 1906, the five-year restriction, imposed in 1902, was extended to twenty-five years. The constitutionality of the acts of 1904 and of 1906 was raised, and congress authorized two Indians, William Brown and Levi B. Gritts, to bring suit to test the laws. The court of claims held the laws to be constitutional. An appeal was taken to the supreme court. On account of the importance of the case the court set it for argument on the opening day of the coming October term, or as soon thereafter as possible.

Jurge Howry, for the minority of the court of claims, pointed out that the Indians had been made citizens of the United States prior to the allotment.

"When the land was granted," he said, "the character of the title allotted to the full-bloods was the same as if allotted to other citizens. The title of the one became as unqualified as the title of the other, and any attempt to differentiate between the fee so held can be sustained only upon the theory that the Indian can never acquire such a right to land as the government is bound to respect."

He held that the Indian could acquire rights the government must respect, and pronounced the right-of-way act and the twenty-five year alienation act unconstitutional.

The majority of the court, headed by Chief Justice Peele, held the law constitutional.

The reversal of the decision of the court of claims would allow the Indians to sell their lands, worth millions of dollars at this time, as the five years long have expired. While the Cherokee lands are intimately concerned, it is generally understood the decision will effect the lands of the other four tribes which held land in the old Indian territory.

L. H. BRANDES.

The installation of officers of the building trades section of the Atlanta Federation of Labor took place last Friday night.

Plumbers, carpenters, steam fitters, stone cutters and paper hangers are represented in the official rol of the trades council, and the representatives of these various lines of work are among the best, most substantial and progressive members of the different trades. Every officer, as well as every member of the trades section, is a member of the union in his line of work. There is not a trade in Atlanta that has to do with housebuilding or construction work that does not belong to the building trades section. The section meets bi-monthly, and during the sessions questions of interest to the housebuilder is discussed freely and fully.

The officers installed are:

President, J. B. Reynolds, of the plumbers; vice president, A. M. Copeland, of the carpenters; financial secretary, C. J. Gleason, of the steam fitters; recording sectary, O. M. Brisendine, of the carpenters; treasurer, L. H. Brandes, of the stone cutters. Board of trustees, C. A. Cone, paper hanger; W. P. Waldrop, plumber, and J. A. Monroe, carpenter.

CHEERING NEWS FOR GOV. BROWN

correctness of reports sent to the press by Mr. George, stating that he was formerly for Hoke Smith, but has recently changed to Joseph M. Brown. The letter follows:

"Madison, Ga., August 10, 1910.—Hon. Milllard George, City.—Dear Sir: Your note of inquiry of even date has my attention.

"Your reference as to my political allegiance, both support and vote, in the state campaigns for governor in 1906 and 1908, as they appear in your special in the public prints, is entirely true.

"The statements that I have always opposed and never supported ex-Governor Smith; that I supported Brown in the race of 1908, and probably Howell in that of 1906, are without foundation and untrue.

"I strongly supported and voted for ex-Governor Smith in his first race; I voted for ex-Governor Smith in his second race. My recollection is that I voted an open ticket each time. I generally do.

"I am for Governor Brown in this race; believing that his nomination will restore and intensify tranquility and harmony to our party and the state—a condition devoutly desired by the business interests of Georgia.

"I never make concealment of my political allegiance, and if anyone be disposed to ignore me, and my own knowledge and consciousness in the matter, any member of the former executive committee of this county, of which I am chairman, can inform such of my outspoken support of Governor Smith in his former races; that I strongly urged his nomination and declared my loyalty at that time to his cause.

"Those who know me will not believe that I talked one way and voted another.

"One who recklessly misquotes my political affiliation is like the partisan backwoodsman who declared that he despised the republican party because, after the war, they hung General Lee and Stonewall Jackson, and when the assertion was questioned, promptly swore that he had personal knowledge and was present at the execution. Respectfully,

"E. W. BUTLER."

Speaking Dates.

The following engagements for Joe Brown speakers have been announced:

Judge Enoch Callaway, of Augusta, will speak in Americus today, and in Mystic on Wednesday. Senator Ed Griffith will speak at Cumming today. J. Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, will speak at Baxley on Thursday, and at Alma, in Appling county, on Friday, the 19th. A barbecue will be served at Alma and at Mystic on the day of the speakings. Hon. Joe Hill Hall will address the voters at Statesboro on Tuesday.

SMITH TO SPEAK IN GAINESVILLE

entire year of 1909 was a part of Governor Hoke Smith's administration, as the income and appropriations for 1909 were made by the legislature under Governor Smith's supervision and approval?

"Have they forgotten that Governor Smith came out in an interview and admitted that he was responsible for the condition of the treasury up to January 1, 1910, although six months of this period would be during Governor Brown's administration, and Governor Smith informed the public that the treasury had been provided with ample money to meet every liability during the balance of that year, and that after paying every teacher and every other claim that could legally be presented to the treasury there would be $400,000 left in the treasury?

"Have they forgotten that the treasury had $424,000 on the first of January, after Governor Brown had paid out every claim that could be presented against it?

"It is true that the teachers were paid everything due them in 1909, but it is also true that it was done in spite of Governor Brown's attack on the treasury and statement that it was bankrupt, and it was done on account of the splendid management given by Governor Smith to the affairs of the state.

EFFORTS TO BRIBE ALLEGED BY WALKER

Indianapolis, Ind., August 14.—John H. Walker, president of the Illinois miners, today at a caucus of the Illinois delegates in Tomlinson Hall, charged that a number of delegates had been offered international offices if they would change their position in regard to the strike in Illinois. Walker did not name the men whom he said had been approached, neither did he say who had made the offer.

Thomas L. Lewis, president of the international organization of miners, who was at his office later, denied that any such offer had been made. Other than to make the denial, he refused to discuss Walker's charge.

Illinois delegates at the caucus today again voted unanimously to stand by the Peoria convention and to demand an indorsement of the Illinois strike.

President Lewis today refused to make any statement before the special committee of twenty-three appointed to make an investigation of all the questions before the convention and especially the situation in Illinois. Lewis said the records would speak for him and it was not necessary to say anything further. The committee organized today by electing John Fahy, of Pennsylvania, chairman and E. S. McCullough, of Michigan, secretary.

GEORGIA MARKSMEN REACH CAMP PERRY

Many Arrivals at Range. The Wimbledon Match Begins Today.

Camp Perry, Ohio, August 14.—With the National Rifle Association of America opening its twenty-eighth annual matches tomorrow, arrivals at the Camp Perry range today were heavy.

The teams representing Georgia, the District of Columbia, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri arrived, following Tennessee and Arizona last night. Regimental teams got in from the Twenty-fourth New York and the Second Connecticut and several members of the Pennsylvania state team came.

For the association's matches the entries are the heaviest they have ever been. Nearly 400, it now seems likely, will open fire in the morning in the Wimbledon match.

LUXURIES IMPORTED BY THE UNITED STATES

The Value of Articles Imported in 1910 Totals $250,000,000.

Washington, August 14.—Two hundred and fifty million dollars' worth of articles classed as luxuries were imported into the United States during the fiscal year 1910, that total exceeding more than $25,000,000 the figures of 1907, the former high record year, and being actually more than double those of 1900, according to statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

Diamonds, jewelry, lace, embroidery, furs, feathers, beads, perfumery, cigars, tobacco, wines, liquors and automobiles constituted the principal luxuries on the list, though in another group were decorated china and bisque, musical instruments, toys, orchids, palms, etc.

The figures show the importation in 1910 of $48,000,000 worth of diamonds and other precious stones; $46,000,000 worth of laces and embroideries; $37,000,000 in tobacco and cigars and $23,000,000 in wines and liquors.

MAYOR GAYNOR GROWS STRONGER

Physicians Report That He's "Looking Fine."

Prayers for Recovery of Mayor in All the Churches—Dr. Broughton, of Atlanta, Who Is in New York, Also Prayed for the Would-Be Assassin.

New York, August 14.—Steadily gaining in strength and free so far from any taint of blood poisoning, Mayor Gaynor has put another day behind him and is one step nearer recovery from the bullet wound inflicted on Tuesday by James J. Gallagher.

He rested well last night, spent a satisfactory morning, took nourishment at intervals with satisfaction, had his wound dressed early, was pronounced "looking fine" by physicians and was resting easily tonight.

During the day his average temperature was 99 degrees, so near normal and so devoid of fluctuations that his surgeons are positive that no blood poison has developed.

Cough Less Acute.

Doctors Arlitz and Dowd remained on duty near his bedside tonight. Dr. Arlitz said after the issuance of the 9:30 p. m. bulletin that the cough which bothered the mayor yesterday was less acute and gradually subsiding. Nearly all inflammation in the throat has passed away and Dr. Arlitz pronounced the patient better in every respect. When the wound was dressed twice during the day, the mayor showed no signs of irritability and conversed cheerfully with the surgeons.

At the Hudson county jail in Jersey City Gallagher attended morning mass, then spent an uneventful day in his cell.

Prayers for Gaynor in Churches.

Prayers for the wounded mayor's recovery were offered throughout the city today. Protestant, Catholic and Unitarian congregations bowed their heads while clergymen prayed that he might be spared. The Rev. William Wilkinson, preaching on the grounds of the uncompleted Episcopal cathedral of St. John, the divine said, in part:

"A free people should make deadly assaults upon its officers a capital crime. Christian men and citizens of all classes should rise in resentment against lawlessness and against the carrying of concealed weapons. With three presidents dead by violence and Mayor Gaynor alive by a miracle, the church of God should teach and preach obedience to law."

Dr. Broughton Prays for Gallagher.

The Rev. Len G. Broughton, of Atlanta, Ga., at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, concluded his prayer for Mayor Gaynor with a plea for Gallagher, the would-be assassin. "We must not forget the man who has caused this great calamity," he said. "We pray that he may be made to see the great wrong he has done; that his heart may be touched by sorrow and that he may turn to God for forgiveness."

In an address made before a political club today former Coroner Julius Hasberger announced that he would present a bill to the next legislature making an attempt on the life of a public official punishable with death or life imprisonment and barring the defense of insanity.

season, and a double bill will break open the ceremonies, the first game starting at 2:30 o'clock.

Harold Johns and Charley Fritz will probably engage in a battle of southpaws in the first affair, while Tom Fisher will be pitted against Frank Allen, the "Crackers' hoodoo," in the second.

This is Tom's first try in the box after an absence of over a month. Give the "Grand Young Man" a good hand when he steps on the rifle pit. Tom is the only Atlanta twirler who has come near trimming Allen, a 0 to 0 tie resulting when they met, while Allen has won four times with other twirlers working against him.

In the games played by these teams the Crackers have scored 26 runs to 31 for the Turtles. They have made 109 hits to 108 for the Turtles, and 22 errors to 26 for the Turtles.

Flaherty and Keiber have won and lost one game each to the Turtles. Rogers won the only game he twirled against them. Johns and Griffin have won one and lost two to them. Fisher has won one, lost two and tied one against them, and Mayer lost the only game he twirled against them.

Frank Allen has won four games and tied one against the Crackers. Goodwin and Peters have won one and lost one each against them. Steele won both games he pitched against them. Klawitter won one and lost two against them, and Fritz lost both games he twirled against them.

The following is the way the members of both teams are using the willow, including the games played Saturday, August 13:

NUMBER "NINE" BIRDS' HOODOO

Figured Prominently in Their Defeat at Hands of Barons.

New Orleans, August 14.—The number nine proved a hoodoo for New Orleans in the game with Birmingham today. Covaleskie, the Birmingham pitcher, struck out nine of the Pelicans, while the wildness of Hess resulted in nine of the Coal Barons being given passes to first. Birmingham also made nine base hits, and when the game closed at nine minutes past six o'clock, the score was 9 to 3, in favor of the visitors. Score:

Chicago, August 14.—New York and Chicago divided a double-header here today, the locals winning the first game, 4 to 1, and Stallings' team the second, 5 to 1. Hughes was pounded for 15 hits in the initial contest, while Lange and Walsh proved invincible. Walsh was the victim of a concentrated attack in the second battle in the fourth inning, when the visitors found him for five singles in a row. These, with a base on balls, netted five runs.

HAL CHASE, WHO MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR REST OF SEASON

New York, August 14.—The hopes of the New York American League fans here have been blasted. Until a month ago the followers of the Highlanders figured their favorites had an excellent chance to land the much coveted gonfalon; but, judging by the recent poor showing, the team will have to do some tall hustling in order to finish in third place. The present western trip of the team has proved a disastrous one for the Highlanders, they having lost the majority of the games played. Added to this is the fact that Hal Chase, the Highlanders' spectacular first-sacker and captain, may be out of the game for the rest of the season. According to Manager Stallings, Hal's eyes are in very bad condition. Even if it is possible for the wonderful first-sacker to play again, it will be probably a month before he is in shape to get back in harness. It was during the Chicago series in New York that Chase took sick and had to retire. He didn't accompany the team on its trip to Boston, and didn't join them until they reached Cleveland, where he got back in the game, but didn't display anywhere near the batting ability or activity in fielding and base running that he is noted for. Stallings certainly has his troubles bunched just now. The Highlanders are badly crippled, and it looks like hard sledding for the team from now until the close of the season.

"BREAK" IMPORTANT FACTOR IN THE WINNING OF GAMES

Over One-Third of Games Played Have Been Won and Lost by One Run in Southern League This Season.

By Dick Jemison.

What is commonly termed as the "break" in the game has been an important factor in the winning and losing of games this season in the Southern League and some teams have suffered more than others in this respect.

Through the games played Sunday there were 426 contests in all engaged in by the teams in this league. Of this number, 159, or more than one-third of them, were won and lost by the bare difference of one measly tally, probably secured by a wild pitch, an error, a fluke home-run, or something of that nature that goes to make up the "break," or the "luck" in the game.

The Crackers have packed the most number of games away along the one run margin route, copping 26 battles in this way; Chattanooga being second with 24, while Mobile has had the least luck in this particular.

Mobile has also been the most unfortunate in losing games by one run, 25 in all being lost by the Gulls by this small margin. Nashville is second with 24, while Chattanooga has lost the least number of battles by this route, with 14.

Here are the games won and lost by the eight teams classified by scores up through 6-5 games, the ones higher than that being under the column marked "higher:"

Here are how the teams stand:

Shut-outs won: Atlanta, 22; New Orleans, 22; Memphis, 20; Nashville, 18; Birmingham, 17; Chattanooga, 13; Mobile, 9; Montgomery, 6.

THE PENNANT SCRAP.

By Dick Jemison.

A hectic pennant scrap now rages,
Three teams are in the hunt;
The "dope" each day fills many pages
From scribes out at the "front."
A blanket would the three surround,
So closely do they stand;
Another race cannot be found
Like this in all the land.
The topmost peg the Birds still hold,
Though wobbly now, it's true,
From shakings by the Barons bold,
Dislodgment seems in view.
The Crackers, on the second step,
Are but four games behind
The Birds; and may o'ertake them yet,
If they have half a mind.
But one whole game is all the space
The Crackers have to boast
Between the third and second place,
That holds the Baron host.
But ere another week rolls past,
Will they still stand the same?
Or will the first one then be last?
Baseball's a funny game!

MULL'S SCORE CARD.

BY FRANCIS MULLANEY.

Speaking of rainy weather, Arlie Latham tells of a game he played in out west some 30 years ago:

"Oh, yes, it was worse than this," said Arlie, looking out the window. "But we had to play the championship game, rain or no rain. A special rule was made by which the outfielders could use boats, that being considered as fair for one as the other. And you would be surprised to see how many good catches were made."

"I guess so," said Seymour with a drawl. "But, Arlie, how did the game come out?"

"Well, I'll tell you," replied Arlie without cracking a smile. "We had them beat, 2 to 0, when they got two men on bases and a line drive was hit straight at the centerfielder. He made a grab for the ball, but missed it and the pill knocked a hole through the middle of the boat and the ball floated away for three bases while our fielder was trying to bail out the water."

"That will be about all," spoke up McGraw. "Come here, Speedie (the major domo of the clubhouse), and turn out the lights."

Larry McLean, the Reds' catcher, declared emphatically this morning that he has no idea of fighting Jack Johnson.

"This thing of being the goat for the white race," said Larry, "is alright to talk about, but it can run for Sweeney as far as I am concerned. I think, at that, I could lick him."

McLean is one of the biggest and strongest men playing baseball today. The other challenger for Johnson's title is supposed to be Frank Smith, of Chicago. He is also a big, strong fellow.

QUERIES ANSWERED.

Under this head the sporting editor will endeavor to answer all questions pertaining to all branches of sports.

Dick Jemison—Sporting Editor Constitution: Does Ty Cobb slide into bases feet first or hands first. L. V.

This depends on circumstances, but in the main he slides feet first, hooking one leg around the bag.

DISEASES OF MEN

DR. WM. M. BAIRD.

If I have some decided and original views on these diseases it is because I have been continuously in the work for 33 years, and for 25 years have devoted my whole time to these difficult and delicate cases.

I believe that many cases of stricture may be cured with less harsh treatment than they often receive. I believe this because I have demonstrated it again and again.

I believe that Syphilis needs not only the proper remedies, but careful, intelligent methods and attention to detail in order to cure and cure permanently.

I believe that Chronic Gonorrhoea causes more physical wrecks than any other diseases. I believe this because I know. I believe that nothing needs more scientific methods in order to cure, and the man who suffers from it knows, too, that I am right.

I believe in straightforward advertising and honest business methods, combined with conscientious treatment, and if you are in need of advice, and will appreciate that kind of service, I will take pleasure in examining you free of charge.

Office hours: 8 a. m. to 7 p. m.; Sunday, 10 to 1.

My booklets, "Diseases of Men" and "Health Essays," sent sealed and in plain wrapper on request.

I have been practicing in Atlanta longer than any advertising specialist here or any firm of advertising specialists. Any statements to the contrary are unequivocally false.

CRACKERS ON ROAD AFTER THIS SERIES

Meet the Turtles, Then Are Gone for Remainder of the Month.

At the conclusion of the series with the Memphis Turtles, which ends on Wednesday, the Crackers will hit the road again, to be gone for the remainder of the month and for the first three days in September.

They go to Chattanooga from Atlanta, playing three games there. From Chattanooga to Birmingham, then to Montgomery, then to New Orleans, then to Mobile and then home.

It will depend on the showing of the boys on this road trip just where they will stand at the finish and they are taking the hardest trip they could take this season of the year.

Not only is the weather hot in Mobile and New Orleans this season of the year, but there are playing the two teams they are fighting for the pennant with, and on hostile soil, the Barons and the Pelicans.

Sixteen games in all will be played on this trip. How many the Crackers will win is a matter of conjecture, but with the strengthened line-up, they will win more than half of them, stick a pin in that. Chattanooga, Mobile and Montgomery should not be hard picking, two out of three should be ours in those cities. What they will do in Birmingham and New Orleans is hard to say, but here's hoping they take two out of three from Birmingham and three out of four from New Orleans.

Should the Crackers accomplish this feat, and it is not altogether unlikely, for they are playing game ball, the pennant rag will be ours. Stick a pin in that. But it takes this playing to cinch it.

AVIATION MEETINGS FAILED IN FRANCE

In Nearly Every Case Result Was Disastrous to Promoters.

Paris, August 14.—The failure of most of the aviation meetings this summer has proved a great disappointment to promoters. After the tremendous success of the great meeting at Rheims last year hundreds of meetings were organized in every country in Europe, and even in Egypt. Beginning with the winter meets along the Riviera, these meetings have continued week after week in almost every large city in France. In almost every case the results of the promoters have been disastrous.

Even Rheims, with the prestige of last year and a long series of broken records this summer, was a financial failure, the loss totalling $60,000. Those identified with the meeting place the blame, not upon decrease of flying interest, but upon the spirit of commercialism with which aeroplaning is being exploited. Promoters hung up enormous purses and paid fabulous sums to secure the presence of the few French cracks whose exploits had astonished the world. Men like Paulham, who fourteen months ago earned $25 a month as a mechanic, suddenly began demanding and getting from $15,000 to $25,000.

The impression in France is that next year there will not be one meeting where there were thirty this year. Those interested in the real development of aviation, however, believe this will be an advantage rather than a drawback. Already they realize that the future for aeroplanes is in their practical utility, and not in their employment in sporting exhibitions, and that the improvement must be along those lines.

Beverly, Mass., August 14.—President Taft has received the following cordial message from the emperor of China:

"To the President of the United States of America—Greetings: Prince Tsai Tao, who has returned from his mission to study the military systems abroad, has given us an account of the generous hospitality and warm reception extended to him by your excellency during his recent visit to your country and also of the special facilities and opportunities everywhere afforded him for making personal observations and obtaining all information in regard to matters pertaining to the military establishment. GREEK KILLS HIMSELF; LOST $15,000 IN ATLANTA

George Samanis, Temporarily Insane, Leaps Into Tennessee River.

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 14.—George Samanis, Greek, formerly in the restaurant business in Atlanta, committed suicide here today. Samanis first saturated paper with oil, lighted it and jumped into the blaze. He was rescued by friends after a struggle. Before his friends realized what he was doing, Samanis seized a large carving knife and slashed at his throat. He was knocked down by his companion, Mike Brown. Springing to his feet, he attacked Brown with the knife. Again he was knocked down and this time disarmed. Regaining his feet, Samanis ran from the house on Ninth street. He ran seven blocks to the Tennessee river, leaped from a barge and sank. His body has not been recovered.

Brown, who was a lifelong friend of the dead man, said that Samanis had lost $15,000 in business in Atlanta recently and it is thought his loss caused him to lose his mind.

RAWN HOME RANSACKED IN SEARCH FOR PAPERS

The Intruder Was Frightened Away by Private Watchman.

Chicago, August 14.—The Winnetka home of Robert C. Brinkley, son-in-law of the late Ira G. Rawn, president of the Monon railroad, who died from a bullet wound less than a month ago, was entered last night and drawers and desks to which Mr. Rawn's private papers had been transferred, were ransacked. The intruder was frightened away by a private watchman. Mr. and Mrs. Brinkley are in Virginia, and it is impossible to learn whether anything of value was taken.

Police Magistrate C. F. Hately declared today the entry was evidently not made for the purpose of burglary, as valuable silver and jewelry were not disturbed.

COTTON IMPROVED IN EASTERN BELT

Farm Tone Decidedly More Optimistic.

Promise for Crop Is Now Fair to Good—Crop Is Late and Would Be Injured by Early Frost—The Plant Growing Rapidly.

Memphis, Tenn., August 14.—The following cotton crop summary will be published by The Commercial-Appeal tomorrow:

For three successive weeks cotton has improved in the states east of the Mississippi river and its promise is now fair to good. The crop is late, and would be seriously damaged by an early frost, while frost later than usual is needed to allow the fullest promise to be matured. The plant within the past two weeks has grown very rapidly, and is attaining fair size. It is setting bolls quite satisfactorily, and the farm tone is decidedly more optimistic.

Such rains as fell during the past week were beneficial. They were local in many sections, however, and the Carolinas and part of Georgia would be benefited by general precipitation.

Weevils Are Active.

Even in the earliest sections of this eastern belt there is very little cotton that is ready to open, and the movement will be delayed well into September unless drouth later on should force premature opening.

Boll weevils are active in Louisiana and Mississippi and are doing some more harm than was earlier anticipated.

In Texas no rains fell except in some of the Red river counties, and the crop lost ground steadily. Cotton is opening prematurely and very rapidly in southern and southwestern counties and is being rushed to market as fast as possible by the farmers. In western Texas, where within the past few years there has been a rapid expansion in cotton growing, the crop is almost a failure, and in many places is beyond repair, but good crops are the rule in the northern tier of Texas counties.

Improvement Outside of Texas.

New Orleans, August 14.—In presenting regular monthly reports of correspondents in all sections of the cotton belt as to progress of the cotton crop, The Times-Democrat will say tomorrow that the consensus of opinion is as follows:

Outside of the droughty districts of Texas distinct improvement has been the rule, but within the droughty districts of that state the deterioriation has been very great.

Except in Oklahoma, where timely rains have made the outlook almost ideal, the crop is spotted.

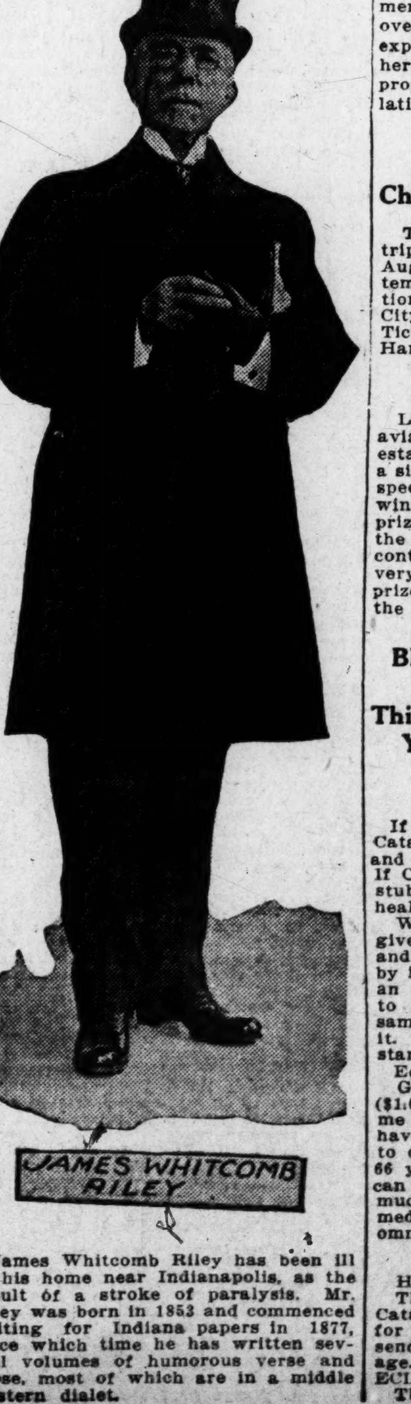

With the exception of Texas, the movement promises to be late because of the backwardness of the plant. Farmers would in most cases sell freely if they could.

Much complaint of destruction by boll weevil comes from parts of Louisiana and Mississippi, but the pest seems to have done less damage than usual elsewhere.

Indian Chief Dead.

Peru, Indiana, August 14.—Gabriel Godfrey, chief of the Miami India tribe, died tonight at his home 4 miles east of this city, after a few hours' illness of heart trouble. Chief Godfrey was 76 years old and had been married three times. He was the father of 19 children.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY SUFFERS FROM PARALYSIS

James Whitcomb Riley has been ill at his home near Indianapolis, as the result of a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Riley was born in 1853 and commenced writing for Indiana papers in 1877, since which time he has written several volumes of humorous verse and prose, most of which are in a middle western dialet.

STOCK MARKET TRENDS UPWARD

The Recovery Continued Through Last Week

Though It Lost Some of Its Force as Prices Got Further Away From Point at Which Fall Was Arrested—Extensive Covering of Short Contracts.

New York, August 14.—The recovery in the stock market continued last week, although losing some of its force as prices got further away from the point at which the fall was arrested. The extensive covering of short contracts which was going on had the effect of reducing the demand and other influences worked automatically to lessen the demand.

The Crop Reports.

Some of the events accompanying the two weeks' recovery which were unfavorable in themselves were to be reckoned as causes by anticipation of the previous decline. Such were the government reports on condition of cotton and the grain crops, which confirmed the fears of heavy deterioration from the earlier promise. The more immediate factors of weather conditions were favorable to some improvement in the average contained in the government report, thus adding to the disposition to cover the shorts which had been put out on the assumption of crop damage. The decided shrinkage from the earlier estimates for all three of the most important crops, cotton, corn and wheat, recurred for consideration in the summing up of the general prospect. The reliance placed on abundant harvests and an exportable surplus to correct the unfavorable foreign trade balance and the likelihood of its disappointment were forced on attention by the statistics of the July foreign trade with the severe decrease in exports of agricultural products and its consequent failure to furnish a supply of foreign credits for the building up of the banking position.

The Banking Position.

The immediate banking position offers little ground for solicitude. The great bulk to which the New York surplus reserve has attained makes a surface showing of actual plethora. Gold engagements in London were uninterrupted, in spite of this showing, and currency still flowed from the interior into New York bank reserves. The fact that these conditions have not altered the conservative attitude of New York bankers toward borrowers, especially on time, and the little demand for mercantile paper are bound to command attention for their suggestion of anxiety over the course of the fall money market. The persistent stagnation of the bond market in the face of the expanding bank surplus is another item showing the spirit of caution still prevalent.

The Metal Trades.

The metal trades were conspicuous objects of attention by reason of the publication of the copper producers' monthly statistics and the newly inaugurated monthly statement of tonnage of unfilled orders on hand by the United States Steel Corporation. The reduced output of copper was satisfactory, but the probable influence of trade contraction on demand in that trade intervened as a factor. The falling off in tonnage orders for the Steel Corporation, while less than the monthly average for the preceding quarter, is influenced by the cutting down of output which has gone on during the month. Current reports of further price recessions and of intended further curtailment also influenced judgment on the trade situation.

There have been signs of a controversy between the interstate commerce commission and the railroads over the legitimacy of charges to the expense account of the railroads. This herald of the coming hearings over proposed rate advances affected speculative sentiment unfavorably.

AUGUST NOTICES COME THIS WEEK

Revival of Interest in Old Cotton Crop.

Bears Expect Considerable Effect to Result From Issuance of These Notices—Outside of This, Weather in Texas Will Continue to Be Main Feature.

New Orleans, August 14.—The week to come in the cotton market will, it is expected, see some revival in operations in the old crop.

It is generally understood by the trade that August notices on rather a large scale will be issued in the New York market Monday morning. Bears expect considerable effect from these, especially if they are followed by threats of large deliveries of new crop cotton later in the month. It is the opinion of quite a large element in the market that the very heavy purchases of new crop cotton in Texas since new cotton commenced to move have been chiefly for the account of shorts in August and that all the new crop cotton will be added to the load of actual cotton that the bulls are already carrying.

Watching Weather in Texas.

Outside of this, the weather in Texas will continue to be the main feature of interest in the market. This question is getting to be very complex and it is growing difficult to say what effect any sort of weather in Texas will have on the market. Up to today it has been the unanimous opinion that nothing but rains will save a large part of the crop in that state. If rains had put in their appearance last week, prices would have declined immediately. Rains are still needed, according to the opinion of many, and it is probable if the rains predicted for over Sunday materialize, the market will work lower.

Bulls contend that it is difficult to see how the market can go down as a result of rains, especially if they continue for several days, as there are thousands of acres of open cotton in Texas all ready for picking, and rains will not only injure the grade of this staple, but will also delay picking as well as the marketing and moving of the cotton. Bulls claim that rains cannot fall in Texas very long without an upward movement in prices.

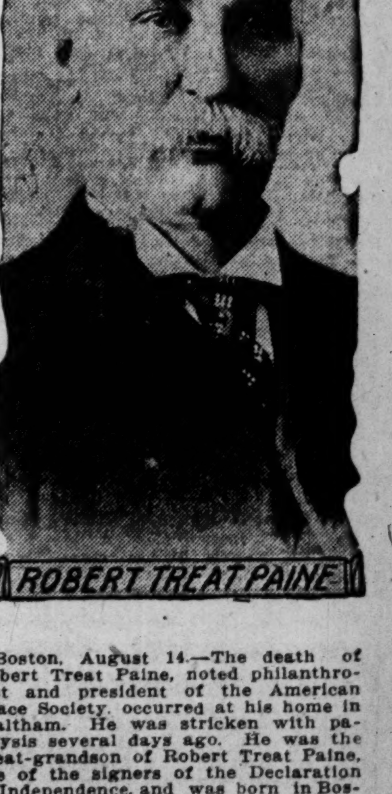

Should the drouth in Texas continue, picking will be rushed and in all probability cotton will be sold as fast as it is ginned. A short time ago large planters were willing to sell futures around 13 cents against their crop expectations, and, therefore, it is reasonable to suppose that the marketing of the new crop will proceed until that level is reached.

Texas Spots and Future Market.

The future market will be influenced to no small extent by the Texas spot situation, and the large traders will keep in close touch with the market from that points of the state Time is fast approaching when the mills will begin to show their attitude toward the new crop and this will be anxiously watched for this week, as much depends upon it. Should it develop that much of the recent buying of spots in Texas has been for the account of mills, instead of August shorts in the future market, it is likely that foreign mills will enter the market. Another feature of the situation that will be watched is the parity between New Orleans and Liverpool markets. This is getting wide enough to allow a large business for foreign account. It must be remembered that Liverpool's stock is very low, only 390,000 bales on Friday, and that this means that Liverpool cotton merchants must buy over 600,000 bales to replenish it, to say nothing about what they must purchase to meet the current requirements of the customers.

Sooner or later, a large demand for spots will develop among buyers for the English and continental trade, and when this begins it will be the dominating influence in the market.

ROBERT TREAT PAINE YIELDS TO PARALYSIS

Boston, August 14.—The death of Robert Treat Paine, noted philanthropist and president of the American Peace Society, occurred at his home in Waltham. He was stricken with paralysis several days ago. He was the great-grandson of Robert Treat Paine, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and was born in Boston October 28, 1835. He practiced law for eleven years, and since 1870 has devoted his life to the promotion of his fellow men. He built more than 200 homes for workingmen and sold them on easy terms. In 1887 he gave $10,000 to Harvard college to endow a fellowship and in 1899 created and endowed the Robert Treat Paine fund with $200,000 to provide for the spiritual, moral and physical welfare of the working classes.

Farms and Farmers

Address all letters intended for this Department to Col. R. J. Redding, Editor of Farms and Farmers Department, Griffin, Georgia

CROPS—GOOD, BAD AND INDIFFERENT.

During a recent visit to the counties of Wilkes and Lincoln I was impressed by the very "spotted" condition of the crops, and have expressed in words this impression and use it as a title to this article. Along the railroad it was bad enough, but this spottedness was even worse on the dirt road from Washington to Lincolnton and from Washington to Ravle, a total distance, as the automobile ran, of about 60 miles. There were evidences of good farming and good management, ever and anon, in the now and then excellent fields of cotton, and frequent magnificent fields of corn. I presume the best efforts to subdue the grass were put forth along the railway and the most public and much-used country roads.

The old proverb came often into mind which asserts that "there's more in the man than there is in the land," and I might add that "there's more in the man than there is in"—the weather. In my talks to the farmers at the two places above named I was minded to poke a little fun at those farmers who use no better implement of tillage than the "icooter and icrape," or "ihovel and scrape," and who have to run at least twice—and sometimes thrice—in a 3 or 3½-foot row in order to stir the entire middle. What plenty of time a farmer would seem to have who can plow on an average of two days in a week (on account of frequent rains) and is found running two furrows in a 3 or 3½-foot row and going over only three to three and a half acres of cotton in a day. No wonder that he gets "in the grass," when at this rate of speed it requires about three weeks to "get over" his full crop of cotton.

But the scooter-and-scrape farmer will reply, "you can't run a cultivator in such grass as I have had to deal with." That's so, I cheerfully admit, but you got in the grass while you were running the scooter-and-scrape combination, because you had to go twice in a row and, therefore, could not get over it fast enough. When a farmer has got stuck in the grass, and it is taking root at every joint and preparing to blossom and re-seed the land for next year, there is perhaps no one-horse tool that can be held to its work of gouging down under the strong and thick bunches and turning them topsy-turvey so well as a scooter-and-scrape and finally a straight shovel to make a grave in which to bury the sod by "barring off" the cotton rows with a turnplow. But what was the farmer doing all the while, along in May and June, when the rainfalls was not excessively frequent and heavy. (At Griffin there was only a total of 2.69 inches of rain in May and 4.02 inches in June—both below the normal). The answer is—plowing with a scooter-and-scrape. At least, many of them were, and they kept it up through July—when they could plow at all—and got over three or four acres every day, to every mule. Why, in July the rainfall in Griffin was but little over three inches, or nearly two inches below the normal.

Now I am not calling names, and I am not referring particularly to any one county. "Let him whom the cap fits wear it," and if it does not fit simply pass it on to the next. The remedy is more thorough preparation of the land and more careful planting. If the cotton crop had been planted like a garden and the weeder had been put to work at once, followed later by a one or two-horse cultivator that would clean out a row at one going, the crop would hardly have got into such condition as to call for a grubbing hoe attached to a Heyman plow stock.

An additional remedy is the employment of more plow animals on the farm. Instead of having two laborers to every mule it would be nearer right to have two mules to every laborer, but one mule to each hand would be a practical compromise. With such a relation of men and mules on a farm employing ten plow animals and ten men, four or five men would be handling the ten mules most of the time, leaving the other five or six men for hoeing and other work.

I think this is one of the crying evils of our system, and one that calls loudly for reform—this superabundance of laborers in proportion to work animals. If we would get our farms in better physical condition; if we will get rid of stumps and rocks and gullies; if we will use bigger plows and better plows; if we will cut down the area in hoed crops (corn and cotton) and increase the area in small grain and pasture; if we would get bigger mules and two-row cultivators; if we would do these things and fill in the necessary or incidental details, the problem of a labor supply will be solved. We will want less human and more mule muscle; more steel and less timber; we will get more profit and less worry and loss.

I was treated well in Wilkes and Lincoln. Met many friends and made more. Got plenty that was good to eat. There are some "mighty good farmers" in these two old anti-revolutionary war counties. I saw some of the finest corn I even saw—promising 150 bushels per acre (prize acres) and some first-rate cotton.

The Calloways and Newsoms and Burdettes and Powells (there are others just as good, but I can't recall at all this moment) are strong men and able leaders, and they are doing much in several ways to elevate the farmers' calling. Mr. Burdette showed me some of the finest alfalfa I have seen in many a day, growing on both sides at the road near his stately and comfortable looking home a few miles from Washington.

My thanks are hereby repeated to all for a most delightful time. I trust that it will not be the last.

NITRATE ON COTTON NOW (August 5.)

Joe W. Kelley, Felton, Ga.—I read your advice and suggestions in The Constitution to farmers, and I try to keep the farmer's page filed for reference, but in spite of all I get "in the brush"—cannot find the page that's got what I want to know about, so please advise me upon the following: Land for cotton, broke well, laid off deep, 3½ feet wide. Put 200 pounds 10—2—2 guano, run long scooter in furrow to mix guano and soil. Listed, then put inside furrows 150 pounds 10—2—2 guano and bedded; let lie a week, then run slide drag over beds, planted May 18, then ran drag again after planting; put 12 to 14 pounds nitrate of soda on top of seed row. Cotton came up quick and was chopped (hoed) to a stand, 2 stalks to 18 inches. It grew like every other cotton field in this locality for quite awhile, slowly, and the consequence is it's late, not a bloom to be found in it until July 22. Growing fine now, and is very full of "forms" (it is Cleveland big boll), and is deep green, except a few spots looks a little light. I put about 40 pounds nitrate to the acre on half of it yesterday. It's been a week since we had rain, and the top of the ground seems so dry I have decided to wait for a rain and put it on just after the next, if it rains soon. Have I waited too long? Seems I have from what you say to A. W. Muse & Co., in Monday's Constitution. You or some one, some time said put nitrate on when the cotton gets to blooming well; that fits mine now, but is it not too late to do much good? Will nitrate of soda do corn any good that is now silking to put at roots of stalks now? A neighbor of mine has wheat that took the rainy weather, and was threshed very wet. He saved it from bad damage by spreading on floors and keeping it stirred, but he tells me that weevils are bad in it already. I told him that I believe you can advise a remedy. Please do so if you know something that he may stop them from ruining it.

Answer—The substance of what I have written in regard to late applications of nitrate of soda is that it is not expedient to deliberately defer such applications to a date so late even as July 15, but that I have no doubt a top-dressing as late as August 1 and even later would benefit the cotton. Whether the increased resulting yield would "pay" is the question that nobody can answer positively, because the squares that form after August 1 will not have time to reach the bloom and open boll stage before a killing frost. Let's count it up: From the first appearance of the scarcely visible square to the bloom requires from 24 to 30 days; from the bloom to the mature boll requires from 50 to 60 days—in all 74 to 90 days from square to open boll (or mature, ready-to-open boll). Now count back from the average date of a killing frost 74 to 90 days and you will find the latest probable date at which a square may make its first appearance and yet have time to form a mature boll. I believe that the nitrate would help to hold the squares and young bolls that have already been formed before this latest date; but I do not know, nor does any one know, whether the advantage would be enough to pay for the nitrate. If the cotton plants have a yellowish cast and the conditions are otherwise favorable for growth I think I would risk a few pounds of nitrate per acre as late as August 1. If at this date it has a healthy color and is growing it would argue that no further nitrogen is needed. The problem in its various phases is well worth the attention of the experiment stations, and I wish that Director Duggar (Alabama station) would take hold of it.

RIBBON CANE V. SORGHUM CANE.

J. J. Hoffman, Wetumpka, Ala.—Last spring I saw an ad. of ribbon cane seed in your paper for sale by the Lyle Seed Company, of Elvins, Texas. I sent for and received seed, which I planted and which proved to be nothing but sorghum. I wrote them several weeks ago, asking if they had any explanation why it was thus. Up to the present time I have heard nothing from them. Seems to me they are a fraud. Do you know anything of them? Hoping this may save others from being swindled as I have been.

Answer—I know nothing about the case. If the concern advertised seed of "ribbon cane" they should, of course, be bound to send you such seed, for, of course, everybody understands "ribbon cane" to mean the ordinary tropical sugarcane such as is grown in Louisiana for making sugar and sirup, and to a considerable extent in other gulf states. But the fact is that this kind of cane does not produce "seed"—using the term in the ordinary sense, as of corn, wheat, peas, etc.—in this country and very rarely in the middle tropics. It is not an article of commerce at all. A variety of cane has recently been introduced into this country under the name of "Japanese cane"—possibly that was what the advertiser meant to advertise. In many parts of the country, mainly where the true sugarcane is not grown at all, sorghum is commonly called "cane," but it ought not to be so called. I would have to see the advertisement to which you refer or be informed as to how it read before I could pass any judgment on the matter.

PINESTRAW COMPOST.

R. F. H., Jr., Columbus, Miss.—Will you please answer in the columns of the Farmers' department of The Constitution the following questions:

(1) I have ben thinking of hauling a lot of pinestraw and leaves and putting them in a large pile and mixing acid phosphate with it to make it rot and then either putting it in the drill next spring or put it broadcast on the land where I intend planting cotton. Will this pay as much as buying commercial fertilizer of an 8—2—2 grade and applying it alone at the rate of 200 pounds to the acre? The land is of a sandy nature with a red clay subsoil.

(2) I also have some land that will produce about 2-3 of a bale per acre this year. How much of commercial fertilizer must I apply per acre, and what grade to make it produce one bale of more? I am going to put stable manure on this land in the drill with the commercial fertilizer.

(3) Will nitrate of soda applied at the time cotton is beginning to put on squares produce as good results as it will if applied before?

Answer—I do not think it would pay you for your labor to handle pinestraw so much. This material contains but a small amount of plant food, one ton of dry needles carrying but 2.8 pounds of phosphoric acid and 1.2 pounds of potash—in all about 4 pounds, worth about 25 cents. Its chief value is the humus or decayed vegetable matter that it would add to the soil. A much more economical way to utilize it would be to use it liberally as bedding or litter in your horse and cattle stall and yards. Or you might put the pinestraw into large piles in the forest where it now is while wet and sprinkle each layer with slaked lime. In the spring haul directly to the field and shove or fork it from the wagon into the bedding furrows.

(2) Apply to each acre 400 to 500 pounds of a 10—2—3 guano or a little more of 9-2.70-2.70, or still more of 8—2.40—2.40. I would apply 2 or 3 tons of the stable manure per acre, applying it in the bedding furrows very early in the spring, or as early as you can do the work and list on it lightly. Apply the commercial fertilizer two or three weeks before planting time and list on it.

(3) If the fertilizer applied before planting, or at the time of planting, contains available nitrogen, then nitrate applied at time of squaring would be proper. But, as a general rule, I advise applying 25 to 40 pounds of nitrate at or immediately after planting.

A FINE CROP OF CORN AND A FINE CROP OF COTTON ON A BIG PLANTATION.

J. W. F., Georgia.—In view of the past long rainy spell, that proved to be so serious to cotton (and to late corn, too) I want to tell through this paper of a visit I recently made to one of the finest plantations in Pulaski county, and also what I saw on that plantation in the way of crops. I am aware that the cotton crop is generally small and shabby, but I know, too, that there are some fine ones, notwithstanding the unfavorable season. The plantation to which I refer is known as the Phillips plantation, situated 8 miles from Hawkinsville. I as a farmer myself, and I have at least some judgment as to how corn and cotton ought to "turn out," everything being favorable. A few days ago, in company with Hardy Anderson, the manager of that plantation, I made a trip out there. We did not remain but a few moments, at the house, before we started over the plantation. We were both on horseback, because a man could not walk through that plantation in the summer without being overcome with heat.

We started for the corn first, and let me tell you now that was the finest large tract of corn I have ever seen. There was 150 acres in the field. The corn was planted in 4-foot rows, with an average distance of 16 inches in the drill. There was no uniformity in the dropping of the corn. In some places there were three stalks in a hill, but every stalk had a small ear. We wound through and through that corn, and whenever we struck bottom land, where the corn was unusually fine, Mr. Anderson would say: "We are now passing through Mississippi bottom." Now and then, while riding through that corn I would bend over a little to place my hand on the ears to see if they were well filled out. We stopped frequently in the bottom to calculate as to how the corn would turn out. It was so thick that a person could scarcely be seen 20 feet away. I mean in the bottoms now, for there it was of a dark green color and, to a great extent, shut out the light of the sun.

Now I am of the opinion that this is the best large field of corn in the state, weather conditions taken into consideration. I will give my opinion in the matter, and I feel quite sure that I am not overrating things, but rather underrating them. I told Mr. Anderson he would gather 5,000 bushels on the 150 acres. That is an average of 33 1-2 bushels to the acre. On the bottom land Mr. Anderson will get 50 bushels to the acre. In the middle of this corn, peas are planted. There is no grass in the corn or the peas, and with a favorable season, Mr. Anderson ought to gather a thousand bushels of peas.

Now I want to make a calculation how the fodder will turn out provided it can be saved in a sound, bright condition. My calculation is an approximate one. Here it is:

I say 300 bundles, of 5 hands each, will be gathered from every acre on the average. That means 45,000 bundles on 150 acres. Averaging 500 bundles to the stack, that means 90 stacks of fodder. Now, supposing that every bundle would average 2 pounds to the bundle, that means 60,000 pounds, or 45 tons. At $20 per ton for the fodder, the total amount would run up to $900.

Now, for his cotton: We rode over 375 acres. Not all of it was large, fine cotton, because some of it was young. Mr. Anderson has 100 acres in cotton from which he will gather 100 bales, weather conditions being favorable. Just now that plantation is needing rain badly, and unless it comes soon, his cotton will "go back." He plants the Bradwell double-jointed cotton. It is usually full of fruit from the bottom to the top, but the bolls are so small. A close inspection showed that the ground beneath the plants was almost covered with green bolls. These bolls were so thick on the lower limbs that they had bent to the ground. This plantation of which I have been writing belongs to the Adams Brothers, wholesale grocers, Macon, Ga.

Comment: I gladly give place to the above well-written description of a good crop, and have no criticism to make, and add only a small calculation suggested by Mr. Feagin's estimate on the fodder yield, which he stresses even more than the yield of either corn, cotton or peas. Suppose instead of "pulling fodder" from that 50 acres of fine corn, Messrs. Adams Bros. shall harvest the crop by cutting and curing in the shock and afterwards shredding the stover.

Granting the correctness of his estimate of the probable yield of cured blades (fodder), which I think is rather high, or 45 tons, at $20 per ton, equals $900. If harvested as above suggested he would get not less than 105 tons of stover—which includes everything but the ears of corn—which is as well worth $15 a ton as the fodder is worth $20, or a total value of stover of $1,605, which is an increase in value of product of $695.

PLANT FOR NAME—NIGHTSHADE.

W. N. Austin, Cusseta, Ga.—Having received in the days gone by intelligent answers from you to all my querkes, I come again seeking information about the enclosed plant—its name, uses and danger in handling. The local name here is "fly poison." The green leaves are crushed, then pour over them a little fresh milk and place where flies can get it. The plant, as I understand it, is pentahedrous, the ribs, however, are very prominent. The stalk, from which I cut this sample, is 7 feet tall, branching near the top. Would like to hear from you through The Constitution. I often tell my friends, when they are seeking solutions of their farm problems, to go to Colonel R. J. Redding, the good old school teacher.

Answer—I am not able to say, positively, as to the species, but the plant belongs to the nightshade family, solanum genus, and probably solanum verbascifolium, the solanum genus including the much advertised "Wonderberry" (or now "Sunberry"), eggplant, tomato, potato (Irish), Jerusalem cherry. I do not know its properties, or uses, but am not surprised to learn that it is poisonous (to flies, at least), as are several species of the solanum genus.

The only plant I know of under the name "fly poison" is Amianthium belonging to the calchicum family.

With a more complete specimen, containing fully developed fruit, and information as to whether it is a shrub or a herb, I might possibly name it more specifically.

FIG BORER—PTYCHODES VITTATUS

Mrs. H. J. Clay, Calvary, Ga.—I enclose a worm taken from a fig tree. Please be so kind as to write me what can be done to save the trees that are being bored. The fruit is smaller than it should be, and sometimes falls off half grown. I would thank you for instructions that will save my trees.

Answer—The fig is subject to the attacks of so few insects and maladies that practically but little attention has been given to them. I suspect that the grub sent by you is a larva of ptychodes vittatus, which is said by Professor Earle to attack fig trees. Not knowing the habits of the fly or beetle that lays the egg I am not prepared to suggest a specific remedy, but advise that you destroy as many of the larvae as possible by means of a pointed wire inserted into their holes. Try also boiling hot water injected with force into their holes by means of a good bulb syringe. I have had success in destroying peachtree borers.

COTTON SEED CONSTITUENTS—COTTON SEED AS A MANURE.

Noah A. Matthews, Batesburg, S. C.—Will you please give me some figures and explain how we are getting on in regard to cotton seed?

1. How much hulls, oil and meat does the oil mills get out of one bushel of seed, and what do they get for each of them?

1. I have in mind that it would pay the farmers to get small seed crushers, crush their own seed, feed and fertilize with them, and not haul the seed away from the farms. Am I right or wrong?

3. Will vetch grow to any advantage on ordinary land, without any fertilizer? If not, what is best to use? I only want to sow a small piece for experiment. Where is the best place to get vetch seed? When and how much seed should be put per acre?

Thanking you for past information, and trusting a continuance of same, I remain, a subscriber.

Answer—1. The average amounts of the several constituents of sound cotton seed as separated at the mill are about as follows:

One ton of cotton seed gives:
Cotton seed meal	750 lbs.
Cotton seed oil	300 "
Cotton seed hulls	900 "
Cotton seed linters	22 "
Moisture and waste	28 "
Total	2,000 lbs.

The market prices for the above have been during the past six months about as follows:

Crude oil, 7 to 10 cents per pound.
Meal, $32 to $34 per ton.
Hulls, $12 to $16 per ton.

2. I think you are certainly wrong. If there is any one thing that I have more insistently urged upon farmers than anything else, it is that a farmer cannot afford to use sound cotton seed—either whole or crushed—as a manure. He should by all means exchange his cotton seed for meal, or sell his seed for cash and buy acid phosphate and potash with the cash, unless it be a long way to the oil mill or railroad station.

Think a moment: From 800 to 900 pounds of cotton meal will be just as effective as a fertilizer as one ton of seed, and far more convenient. One ton of seed will exchange for one ton of meal. The oil of the seed is what gives it its chief value, and this oil is entirely wasted when the seed are put into the soil as a fertilizer. The 900 pounds of hulls that a ton of seed contains are worth $6 to $8 for cattle feed, while they are practically valueless to the crop when used as a fertilizer for at least one year. A ton of hulls contains only about $3 to $3.50 worth of plant food, and it is not immediately available to the plant, nor until thoroughly rotted. I estimate that farmers who use sound cotton seed as a fertilizer lose—no, actually throw away—from $10 to $20 for every ton so used!

3. Vetch does not require a rich soil, neither will it amount to much on a thin soil. Apply 250 to 300 pounds per acre of 10—4 or 8—4 acid and potash. All regular seedsmen sell vetch seed. Forty to sixty pounds of seed per acre. Sow in September and October.

FARCY, PROBABLY.

H. S. Wood, Simpsonville, S. C.—I have a mule that has a breaking out on her breast, shoulders, neck and forelegs. It started like water farcy, then to knots the size of peas, which would burst and bleed, and she would bite and rub. When the bumps go in her bag sells up and sels ut her belly and looks like a bag of ater. She has been that way three months. All I have done seems to do no good. Any information ill be gladly received.

Answer—Your description of the symptoms exhibited in the case of your mule tally very closely with the characters of farcy, and I advise you to have the animal examined by an expert veterinary surgeon. Perhaps you know that farcy is almost always fatal—very few cases get well even under the best treatment. The following is the standard treatment: Give 2 drams of bluestone twice a day in a bran mash for a month; feed good hay and oats. Air the sores and dress them twice a day by dusting iodoform powder on them or wash them with a solution of 1 dram of chloride of zinc in 1 pint of water. Keep the animal separate from all others. If it proves to be farcy, then you should be very careful to clean up thoroughly and disinfect the stable where the mule has been kept. Burn everything that can be removed. Whitewash every part of the stable with lime and water, the latter containing 6 ounces carbolic acid to every gallon. After whitewashing, close up every door and window and burn plenty of sulphur (2 pounds) in pots containing live coal, and keep the building closed twelve hours.

VETCH OR CRIMSON CLOVER.

S. S. Dean, Rome, Ga.—I am quite anxious to get your opinion on the relative merits of crimson clover and vetch as winter cover and hay crops. I am informed that it is very hard to get a stand of crimson clover, and have no information at hand as to the value of vetch for hay. Enclosed find stamp for your reply, but your answer through the columns of The Constitution will be appreciated, if it is not customary to answer otherwise.

Answer—According to my experience vetch is to be preferred to crimson clover on several grounds. Vetch is more nutritious than crimson clover, comes up more certainly; is not particular about the character of the soil; does not seem to require the inoculation of the soil; the hay of vetch is not at all dangerous to horses as is that of crimson clover when cut too ripe.

COUGH OF PIGS.

W. S. Hancock, Baconton, Ga.—I have some pigs that have been going in the woods, and they cough like hogs sleeping under a very dusty old house. I have lost one, and some of the others look like they would die. I send you a self-addressed envelope. Please let me know what is the matter with them and a remedy as soon as you can.

Answer—A cough is not itself a disease, but only a symptom of some one of several diseases, whether it occurs in a pig or other animal, or in case of a human being. Pigs are quite subject to cough, which, in a great many cases, does not seem to affect the health of the animal. If possible find out the cause of the cough and treat accordingly. If this cannot be done give each affected animal from 2 to 3 tablespoonfuls of Epsom salts in a pint of cold water. If this does not relieve it give each one teaspoonful of sirup of squills at a dose three times a day. Worms often cause a cough, and where a number of pigs have a cough worms may be suspected, and each pig should get one-half ounce of fluid extract of spigelia and senna at a dose every four hours until it purges. Tar given in teaspoonful doses in the food three times a day is also good and can do no harm.

NEW YORK YACHTSMEN GRAZED BY DEATH

Newport, R. I., August 14.—A party of six New York yachtsmen had a narrow escape from death early today when the handsome 45-foot yawl Fiedlio, of the Brooklyn Yacht Club, was run down off Point Judith by the tug Vigilant, owned by Williams Brothers, of New York.

Captain C. T. Smith, of the yawl, was the only man on deck at the time, while in the cabin asleep were Frederick K. Fox and M. L. Clark, who are both entered for the national tennis tournament here tomorrow; Kenneth S. Ferguson, Robert E. Muller and Andrew Anderson, the mate.

The sail boat began to sink immediately, and Captain Smith hastily aroused his slumbering companions. Barely awake, and clad in their pajamas, which was all they saved from the wreck, all dived overboard except Mr. Smith, who climbed on board the tug, which immediately lowered a boat and picked up the other four men.

Mate Lyman, of the Vigilant, says the yawl was showing no lights when the accident occurred. The shipwrecked yachtsmen were brought into this harbor, and Fox and Clark tonight thought they would default in the tennis tournament tomorrow, as they lost all their equipment.

OAK VIEW LOTS

The prettiest spot on the South Decatur car line is at Oak View, where the road through Druid Hills to East Lake crosses. At this point five roads or streets come together—East Lake road, Fayetteville road (or Ansley avenue), Meade road, Hill street and Oak View road; and here we have laid off some fine lots, 100x400 (with two street fronts) for $1,000.

NEGRO FARM SCHOOL ENDS MOST PROSPEROUS SESSION

The negro farm school, which has been conducted at Clark university, closed Saturday after a most satisfactory session. There were 120 farmers who registered, and they represent forty counties in the state. One hundred of these farmers own the land they cultivate and are highly respected by both white and colored in their community. This has been the most successful institute that school has yet held, and the faculty feels that much good has been done by this one week's work.

One improvement over last year was the half day given the negro women of the community. They showed by demonstration, or cooking, making jellies and canning fruit and making use of waste things about the farms, how the farmer may help himself and rid himself of all of the credit. A Tuskegee woman showed how she had taken a few chickens and three cows, in seven months of this year, and realized $183 for milk, $78 for eggs, $82 for chickens and has on hand now over 100 fryers worth 75 cents each and 120 young hens worth over $1 each.

One of the most heated discussions of the session was upon the subject of "How Best to Control Farm Labor Working Shares, Stand Rent and Working for Wages." The discussion was opened by S. S. Dawson, a negro farmer of Washington county, owning about 400 acres of farm land and working quite a number of negro tenants and laborers. Dawson said that the one-year system of renting land was bad for both the land owner and the tenants, and that we could never raise the standard of farming as high as it should be so long as this system was followed. In the first place, it fosters a worthless class of farm laborers who are uncertain and unreliable, and, secondly, they care absolutely nothing for the land or the premises on which the live. "We should adopt a five-year or ten-year system of leasing, and then seek to teach and encourage tenants not to be an eye-servant, but work whether his employer is around or not."

It was the first time in the history of Georgia that a bunch of negro farmers have been instructed as to the kind and care of farm teams and tools. Professor Hile, of the Agricultural college of Athens, said the scooter and the 600-pound mule or horse must go and the farmers had just as well make up your minds to it. Conditions demand deeper plowing, which would mean larger teams and different plows.

On Wednesday two addresses were made by Professor Carven, director of the agricultural instruction and experimental station, Tuskegee, Ala. The first subject dealt with the improvement of cotton by the proper selection of seed; by cross-breeding, and by the proper preparation and fertilization of the land.

The importance of good cooking was given much prominence. It was very clearly shown that with every crop removed from the farm a certain amount of fertility was removed that would forever remain out, unless returned in the form of animal, mineral or vegetable matter.

The three principal fertilizers were discussed, viz: nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid. It was shown that their chief offices were as follows: Nitrogen makes the leaves, stems and roots of the plant. Potash assists in making of sugars, starches, fats, gums, resins, oils and other carbonacious substances, while phosphate deals mainly with the development of the seed.

The farmers closed the session of 1910 by passing resolutions indorsing the work which Professor Parks is doing at Clark university.

CRIPPEN AND THE GIRL WILL SOON BE RETURNED

Scotland Yard Sends People to Assist Inspector Dew.

Quebec, August 14.—Sergeant Mitchell, of Scotland Yard, and the two wardesses from Halloway jail arrived here today to help Inspector Dew take Dr. Hawley Harvey Crippen and Ethel Claire Leneve back to London to be tried, charged with the murder of Belle Elmore.

This afternoon the quartet drove to the provincial jail, but did not see the prisoners. Dew handed Jailer Maurin a letter for Miss Leneve, brought from London by Mitchell. Beyond saying that it came from the girl's family in England, the jailer would reveal nothing of its contents. The newcomers had no message for Crippen.

Now that the fifteen-day limit is up, the prisoners may be taken back any day.

Apparently both prisoners are eager to return. Today when Crippen learned that Mitchell and his assistants had arrived, he said to his jailer: "I am glad they've come. They cannot take me back any too soon."

Both Crippen and Miss Leneve attended religious services at the jail today. The man heard mass in the Catholic chapel with two armed guards at his elbows. This was the first time the girl has been willing to go to church. The authorities permitted her to listen to the Church of England service in a small nook behind the altar, where she could see and hear, but was herself screened from observation.

LONG WALK TAKEN BY MAN AND WIFE

Ossining, N. Y., August 14.—Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Woolf, who are walking from Kansas City to New York, passed through here today. They are in camp near Yonkers this evening, and will finish their walk tomorrow.

Mrs. Woolf believes she has walked farther on the road than any other woman living. They are in excellent health. They left Kansas City on May 2 in order that Woolf, who is a musician, might regain his health. A dog and a horse, the latter pulling a cart with provisions, complete the party.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL BLAMED FOR DISASTER

Naval Collie Marcellus Sunk by the Fruit Steamer Di Giorgio.

Norfolk, Va., August 14.—Carpenter A. Becks, William E. Medina, mess boy, and John Jaus, a Porto Rican sailor, all from the ill-fated naval collie Marcellus, which was sunk in 1,400 fathoms 125 miles southeast of Hatteras last Tuesday, by the Norwegian fruit steamer Rosario Di Giorgio, declare the latter vessel was to blame for the collision.

Becks said the Norwegian vessel, coming north, steamed between the colliers Marcellus and Leonidas, and deliberately turned around and ran right into the former.

The crash of the vessels coming together threw many of the crew from their bunks, and several received bad bruises.

Becks says the water began to pour rapidly into the jagged hole despite the constant working of the pumps.

"Every man was at his post quickly and as soon as he reached the upper deck. There was excellent discipline, and when it was found that the water at the start was making small headway there was little to do but stand by. Every one of the boats was lowered away, and from the fruit steamer we could see their boats lowered away also. The small boats of the Leonidas were quickly on the scene.

"The water found its way from the magazine into the cargo hold, and from that time it began to gain. The crews' quarters were flooded, and they lost all of their effects."
